Hundreds Are Made Homeless

Floods Close U.S. War Plants

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Several war plants closed, hundreds of homes, stores and streets were flooded and rail and motor transportation was curtailed in the Pittsburgh industrial area today as rivers and streams overflowed.

The floods swept down the Allegheny river north of Pittsburgh and moved down the Ohio river toward Ohio and West Virginia.

In Pittsburgh proper, waters rising six inches an hour flooded low-lying streets at the edge of the business section, devastated by the big flood of March 17, 1936. Firemen and civilian defence workers assisted families marooned in nearby communities. Red Cross relief committees evacuated families and began setting up mass feeding units.

The Ohio river stage at Pittsburgh at noon was the highest for December in 100 years.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Ohio river climbed past flood stage in eastern Ohio today, inundating lowlands, driving out families and hampering industrial production, while swollen tributaries lapped at communities in the central and southern sections of the state.

Civilian defence corps were mobilized or ordered to stand by for emergencies. Highways were blocked and public transportation impeded.

The highway patrol cancelled all leaves and ordered its full personnel to stand by for emergency duty.

Fifty families were evacuated from homes at Empire, on the Ohio River 12 miles north of Steubenville and 130 more were being moved out. One hundred families were moving out near Marietta.

Rolling Toward Rostov

Soviets Cut Through 30,000 Nazi Troops

MOSCOW, Dec. 30.—The Red army cut its way through 30,000 German troops southwest of Stalingrad today, seized a divisional headquarters and rolled on toward the rich prize of Rostov, key to the Caucasus.

Four big ammunition dumps fell to the advancing Russians and large numbers of Axis prisoners began trudging toward the rear lines from Kotelnikovski, captured by the Russians yesterday.

There were indications that there might be another Russian offensive soon on the northern end of the 1,100-mile battle line. A Berlin dispatch to the Swedish newspaper Nya Dagligt Allehanda reported that Soviet trucks were streaming across frozen Lake Ladoga, restoring land communication with besieged Leningrad. German artillery was shelling the ice, the dispatch said.)

TANKS LEAD ASSAULT

Tanks led the night assault that defeated the Germans southwest of Stalingrad.

By their capture of Kotelnikovski, 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad, the Russians smashed the anchor of the entire German right wing and news was expected at any time that the Russian left wing had swung around in a direct attack over flat plains, which offer little possibility of effective de-

INSTALMENT XX
INTO THE CHINA SEA

I SEEM to be glued to the hull of the Repulse. Just my head is loose. I turn it from side to side, watching the last-minute evacuation of the ship. Someone slides down the hull, pauses for a moment at the bulge, stands up and makes a beautiful swan dive. That galvanizes me, and I stand up in the porthole and jump, the camera wildly swinging from its strap around my neck.

The jump is about twenty feet. The water is warm; it is not water, but thick oil. My first action is to look at my stop watch. It is smashed at 12:35, one hour and twenty minutes after the first Japanese bomb came through 12,000 feet to crash into the catapult deck of the Repulse.

It doesn't occur to me to swim away from the ship until I see others striking out. Then I realize how difficult it is. The oil soaks into my clothes weighing them and I think underwater demons are tugging at me, trying to drag me down. The airless lifebelt, absorbing oil too, tightens and tautens the preserver cords around my neck. I say to myself: "I'm going to choke to death. I'm going to choke to death."

Next to confined places, all my life, I've been afraid of choking to death. This is the first moment of fear.

I have a ring on my left hand which my wife bought for me on the Ponte Vecchio in Florence when we were on our honeymoon. It is rather long today. Without oil on my hands, I'm afraid I will lose it. I clench my fist so that it won't slip off.

I start swimming away with the left hand clenched. With my right hand I make one stroke, lag at the word around my neck in a futile effort to loosen it, then make another stroke to get away from the ship.

HELPS SAVE LIFE

That ring helps save my life. Something like it must have helped save the lives of hundreds of men. Your mind fastens itself on silly unimportant matters, absorbing your thoughts and stifling the natural instinct of man to panic in the face of death.

I see a life preserver eighteen inches long and four inches thick. It is a long sausage and I tuck it to me. A small piece of wood appears.

War News Summary

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 30

Russia: Russia's steamroller offensive lunged on across the middle Don steppes today and battered at the gates of another "big populated place"—perhaps Millerovo or Kamensk—after seizing the key German-held rail citadel of Kotelnikovski, 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad. The fall of Kotelnikovski, the first big prize of the Russian winter offensive about sealed the doom of 22 German divisions trapped before Stalingrad. Kotelnikovski served as a main base of supplies for the German siege armies west of Stalingrad.

Frantic Nazi efforts to stem the Russian tide on the Middle Don steppes by throwing in masses of reserves have been frustrated.

North Africa: Cairo headquarters reported a new flare of activity as Montgomery's 8th Army vanguards attacked the Axis west of the Wadi Bei El Chebir, 180 miles from Tripoli.

Rommel has retreated more than 220 miles across the Libyan desert since the British offensive on the old El Agheila front was launched three weeks ago.

On the west flank of the two-way Allied drive, French troops in Central Tunisia and American soldiers to the south were reported advancing slowly in a threat to cut the vital coast road linking Tunisia with Tripolitania.

Pacific Theatre: American troops in New Guinea were gratified today with the capture of the "bloody triangle," a series of 13 fortified bunkers bitterly defended by the Japanese, while other Allied forces slowly closed a trap around the enemy's narrow beach corridor at Buna.

R.A.F. Blenheim bombers escorted by fighters blasted anew at the Japanese airdrome at Monywa, on the Chindwin River in northwest Burma, and pounded the enemy air base at Toungoo in central Burma.

No further word was forthcoming on the progress of the British overland thrust, which yesterday was reported to have reached Rathedaung, 25 miles from Akyab.

Former British Ambassador to Berlin Passes

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Sir Nevile Henderson, former British ambassador to Berlin, died in his sleep at his west end home last night.

He had been ill for some time.

Sir Nevile was ambassador to Berlin through the Munich crisis and at the time of the outbreak of the war with Germany.

Sir Nevile described those fateful days in a book, "Failure Of A Mission," published in 1940.

Since 1941 he has been a group commander, or colonel, in the Home Guard. He was 60 years old.

SOUGHT THEIR FRIENDSHIP

He declared in February, 1941, that "when Hitler has nothing more to offer the Germans, when he realizes he has been cheating them, he will crack and scuttle himself."

During his mission to Berlin, Sir Nevile strove to bring about friendship and understanding between Britain and Germany.

MacNamara Made Deputy Minister

OTTAWA, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Appointment of Arthur MacNamara, associate deputy minister of labor, to the position of deputy minister was officially announced by the office of Prime Minister Mackenzie King today.

Mr. MacNamara, who succeeds Dr. Bryce Stewart, came to Ottawa as associate deputy in 1940, and since the resignation of Elliott M. Little Nov. 16, has been director of national selective service. Dr. Stewart recently resigned to return to New York, where he holds a position with the Rockefeller Foundation.

Mr. MacNamara, 58, was born in Toronto, and was for a number of years connected with the Manitoba labor department, holding the position of deputy minister of labor for that province when he resigned to join the Federal labor department. He served in the air force during the First Great War.

Full Investigation Into C.N.R. Wreck At Lazare, Man.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 30.—(CP)—W. R. Devenish, vice-president and general manager of the western region, Canadian National Railways, said in a statement today that a full and searching investigation is being conducted by railway authorities into the collision of two trains at Lazare, Man., yesterday, which resulted in injury to 22 passengers and eight employees.

Allies Extend Wedges at Buna

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Dec. 30.—Two expanding Allied wedges in the Japanese beachhead near Buna threatened today to isolate forces still holding out near the western end of the main Japanese air strip.

In eastern New Guinea, where the Japanese less than six months ago had a free hand and were planning a thrust still nearer to Australia the enemy had left today a strip of jungle and swamp one and three eighths miles long and only 1,300 yards wide at its widest.

Allied Catalina patrol bombers last night attacked the Japanese airdrome area at Kavieng, on New Ireland, dropping 250-pound bombs on hangars, runways and dispersal areas.

Gas Credit Cards Banned in States

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The petroleum administration for war announced today that, effective Jan. 1, gasoline companies in the United States will be forbidden to issue to motorists or use credit, courtesy, or identification cards unless the cards are limited to a single station.

Most of the larger companies have issued credit cards good at any of their stations.

U.S. Bombers Attack Lorient

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Heavy bombers of the United States army air force attacked submarine pens in the Nazi-held French port of Lorient this afternoon.

Three bombers are missing, but the communique said a "number" of enemy fighters were destroyed when they attempted to intercept the raiders over the target area.

A joint bulletin from the Air Ministry and headquarters of the United States army, European theatre of operations, said Allied fighters also made sweeps over enemy territory without encountering air opposition.

City Air Gunner Receives Badge

WINNIPEG, Dec. 30. — (CP) — Graduate air gunners today presented with flying badges at No. 3 Bombing and Gunnery School, R.C.A.F., included W. L. Doran, Edmonton.

Bombs Kill Four In English Town

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Four persons were killed today when three German planes bombed the residential districts of a southwest coast town in a raid which lasted but a few moments.

The raiders, believed to have been Focke-Wulf-190's, first dropped bombs, then returned to strafe the town with machine-gun and cannon fire. Some persons were trapped in wrecked buildings.

Two enemy planes later bombed a southeast coast village and caused some casualties.

Minister Clarifies Position

American Engineers Believed Planning Construction of Road Linking Edmonton-Dawson Creek

By JACK DePROSE

"Anyone who interprets anything I may say to mean that the Alberta Government and I, personally, are not interested in or doing anything about a highway link connecting Edmonton directly with the Alaska highway at Dawson Creek is certainly not applying common sense to advantages to this province which are absolutely obvious and for which we have been striving for years."

This statement was made by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, when interviewed by The Bulletin Wednesday. Mr. Fallow was asked to clarify a report which appeared in a local newspaper Tuesday to the effect that Alberta was not considering a direct-route road north.

"An effort is being made, apparently, to confuse in the public mind the whole situation with regard to the Alaska Highway," Mr. Fallow said. "The Alaska Highway is purely a project under the direction of the United States Engineers through which the project is being financed. We have given and we intend to continue giving every possible assistance to the United States authorities.

"But when I say that the Alberta Government is not considering a direct road north, I do so having every reason to believe that the American engineers are doing so and that therefore it would be completely out of order for us to lay similar plans.

"What this government is considering most seriously is the plight of our towns and villages which need more and better roads which are a responsibility of this government and not of the American engineers.

"The publication of the article in the newspaper in question on Tuesday confused the issue by inferring that it is a responsibility of this government to complete the Alaska Highway link by driving a road through from Whitecourt to Grande Prairie. Certainly, I said that this government is not considering completion of that road, which runs through unpopulated territory, until such time as conditions warrant. What right would we have to consider such a thing when other districts which are settled are badly in need of roads?

WILL CO-OPERATE

"If, for military purposes, the American engineers decide to build a military highway from Dawson Creek to Edmonton, they will find us eager and willing to give every possible co-operation and assistance.

Asked to clarify the highway situation in the northwest of the province, Mr. Fallow said that a survey has been run from Whitecourt to Valley View. The right of way has been cleared from Whitecourt to the point where the provincial highway will cross the Athabasca river about 30 miles west of Whitecourt.

"We have been working on the stretch from Edmonton to Whitecourt which is now graded and gravelled to Glenevis," he said, "and it is our intention to carry on as fast as funds will permit to build the road to standard gravelled grade as soon as possible until we reach Whitecourt. From then on it will be a matter of deciding when, where and how this link will be completed farther north.

"It must be obvious to anyone who has given the matter serious thought," Mr. Fallow continued, "that any permanent link that is built on the Alaskan highway between Dawson Creek and Edmonton will follow the shortest possible route, but even in this event, the existing highway system both in the Whitecourt and the Peace River districts will be maintained for the benefit of the towns and villages which they serve.

AGITATION IN SOUTH

"There has been some agitation in the southern part of the province for the surfacing of the highway from Coutts to Letlabridge. When the war broke out we had a definite program planned in this connection. I would remind those who are critical that, no matter how desirable this and other surfacing work, and no matter how sincerely we want to complete it, such work is impossible because all the materials required have been frozen under wartime orders and regulations." Mr. Fallow concluded.

Cross Wadi

8th Army Hits At Straggling Axis Transport

By LEON KAY
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

CAIRO, Dec. 30. — British Eighth Army patrols have broken across the Wadi Bei El Chebir, first of the remaining three possible lines of defence on the Libyan coast, and are slashing into straggling Afrika Korps transport, a communique of the middle eastern command said today.

Operating in lightning columns, the British patrols were reported harassing the enemy both in his rear and on the land flank, and the communique said some enemy vehicles had been destroyed in fighting yesterday.

The Wadi Bei El Chebir is 55 miles west of Sirte and 185 miles east of Tripoli.

It was long believed that if Field Marshal Erwin Rommel tried even a delaying stand, it would be based on this wadi, or dried river bed, and the Wadis Zemzem and Sofeggin which slash the Axis line of retreat in the Buerata area, 120 miles from Tripoli and 200 miles from Tunisia.

Hence it was indicated that the possibility of an Axis delaying stand had materially lessened, and it appeared that Rommel was intent only on getting his broken forces to Tunisia for the Axis last ditch stand on the African continent.

Edmonton Third In Awards for Fire Prevention

OTTAWA, Dec. 30—(CP)—Awards won by Canadian municipalities taking part in fire prevention week last fall were announced yesterday with first place won by Quebec and second place by Brantford, Ont.

Cities scoring 90 per cent. or more, in order of their standing, included Quebec, Brantford, Edmonton, Hull, Montreal, tied for third; Hamilton, Toronto and Windsor, Ont., tied for fourth; Ottawa, Kitchener, Ont., and London, Ont., tied for sixth.

Winning towns and cities in the different classifications, by provinces, included:

Population under 5,000—Red Deer and Wetaskiwin, Alta.; Chilliwack and Prince George, B.C.; Morden and The Pas, Man.

House Debate Is Sought on Medical Board

OTTAWA, Dec. 30.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, yesterday made public a letter he wrote to Prime Minister Mackenzie King urging that opportunity be given for full discussion in parliament of the powers given to the Canadian Medical Procurement and Assignment Board and of the board's personnel.

In Mr. King's reply, also made public by Mr. Coldwell, the Prime Minister said he had brought the C.C.F. leader's representations to the attention of Defence Minister Ralston and Pensions Minister Mackenzie for examination, "with a view to their subsequent consideration by the government as a whole."

COLDWELL "DISTURBED"

Mr. Coldwell said in his letter that he was "disturbed" about the medical board because it was in the "control" of Canadian Medical Association officers, was under defence department direction, and its powers had been widened to include health services and health requirements of war industries and the civilian population as well as of the armed forces.

This implies an extension to the entire public health structure of the provinces and municipalities," Mr. Coldwell said.

Expansion Takes Place

Departing Year Is Featured By Series Important Events

One of the most momentous, active and memorable years in the varied, colorful history of this city is about to depart. The year 1942 will be rung out and 1943 will be rung in, amid blowing of whistles, screaming of sirens and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." There is always a celebration at the ringing out of the Old Year, and the ringing in of the New Year. But, whether 1942 brought the individual good tidings or bad, fair weather or foul, on its record alone, it must go down in history as being of outstanding importance.

The year observed tremendous growth and expansion of this city, due to the construction of the Alaska Highway, and the development of military projects. The heavy influx of new residents, due to war work, not only created a housing problem, but contributed much to general prosperity.

In saying "farewell" to 1942 and "welcome" to 1943, The Bulletin presents its annual summary of news highlights of this city, so that a picture of the year, and its tremendous activity, may be obtained.

The Province

Preparations for post-war reconstruction featured administrative work of the Alberta government during 1942, and as the year ends the Social Credit government has ready a scheme of rehabilitation of members of the armed forces when the war is over.

Plans for the care of ex-service men and women when they returned to civilian life were drawn up at a joint caucus here of Social Credit-Reconstruction Party members of the Alberta legislature. These plans were adopted in the form of resolutions adopted at a Post-War Reconstruction Conference held in Edmonton during the middle of December.

DEBT DISCUSSIONS

Debt discussions also highlighted government activities during the year. Conferences were held on farm debts as well as a debt at a

U.S. Troops Are Now Within 40 Miles of Gabes

LONDON, Dec. 30. — (CP) — United States troops were reported in a Reuters News Agency dispatch today to have advanced to within 40 miles of Gabes, strategic Tunisian port which lies approximately midway between Axis-held Tripoli and Tunis.

The direction of the advance was not stated, but delayed field dispatches received last night disclosed that an American force was operating on the southern Tunisian front and told of a recent raid on Maknassy, 55 miles northwest of Gabes and 40 miles from the coastal road and railway, in which 21 Italians were captured.

ENEMY SHELLED

Allied shelling of enemy positions in the hills northeast of Medjez El Bab was also reported by the United States war department in a communique which said also that forward patrols inflicted casualties on Axis forces and had taken some prisoners.

French troops in central Tunisia and American forces to the south were reported advancing slowly in a three-way drive upon the coastal road. Medjez El Bab is bogged at the main Allied forces near Tunis.

Oat Deliveries

WINNIPEG, Dec. 30.—(CP)—The Canadian Wheat Board announced today that effective immediately the general quota of oats delivered at all delivery points will be 20 bushels per seeded acre.

GUELPH, Ont., Dec. 30.—(CP)—Lieut. Russell A. McElroy, member of the Canadian (Active) Army for two years, isn't frightened by the prospect of a sea voyage. Since the war started he has made five trips across the Atlantic.

lower rate of interest were formulated.

This parley was followed by a farm debt conference at Saskatoon attended by delegates from the western provinces. As a result of this meeting, submissions were made to Ottawa. Alberta took a leading part in these discussions, and proposals submitted by this province formed the general basis of recommendations made by Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to the Dominion government.

An effort was made by the Alberta government to settle the whole provincial debt question through a refunding plan. Government officials met with bondholders' representatives during June, but negotiations fell through when spokesmen for bondholders and government spokesmen failed to agree on the interest rate for a refunding plan.

DEBT ACT

Relief for Alberta debtors was sought through the Alberta Debt Adjustment Act, but this act was found ultra vires by the Supreme Court of Canada. Appeal against this ruling was carried to the Privy Council in London, Eng., with Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Ontario and New Brunswick joining with Alberta to make representations to the Privy Council, which has not yet handed down a ruling on the appeal.

Labor problems created by wartime conditions were also dealt with at conferences called by the government during the year. Farm and mine labor were dealt with particularly, and as a result of these discussions plans were adopted which resulted in an easement of the labor situation generally.

Another highlight in the provincial government's activities during the year was the provincial by-election Sept. 22. At U. S. Elmer E. Roper's co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate, was elected to fill the seat in the Alberta legislature left vacant by the death of Dr. M. Duggan, M.L.A., Independent, Edmonton.

LEGISLATURE

Much important legislation was passed at the second session of the ninth Legislative Assembly of Alberta, in session from Jan. 29 to March 19. Seventy-four bills were introduced at the session, one of the most important being a bill to amend the University Act to provide for the future needs of the institution. This was passed.

Another important item on the year's calendar was the judgment handed down by Mr. Justice Ewing following an inquiry into the disastrous Nordegg mine blast which took the lives of 29 miners. As a result, charges of negligence were laid against Brazeau Collieries, the case being heard at Red Deer in November. The hearing will be continued at Calgary in January.

The government's policy with regard to enlarged municipal areas progressed during the year, many meetings being held throughout the province as steps were taken to combine municipalities into larger units.

Several meetings of the Alberta Regional War Labor Board were held during the year at which the administration of wage ceilings in co-operation with the Dominion government were discussed.

The Tourist Advisory Board was also active during the year and considerable effort adopted to prepare for post-war developments.

A government transaction of wide interest consummated during the year was the lease of Government House to North West Airlines. Furnishings were sold at a public auction held in October.

The City

The year 1942 will be remembered as one of the most successful in the city's history.

The first notable achievement was the elimination of the bank overdraft, and the establishment of a substantial credit balance which has been maintained throughout the year. The bank overdraft, which stood at $2,000,000 approximately on Dec. 31, 1937, has been reduced at the rate of $400,000 annually since that date.

Prepayment of taxes in 1942 were slightly lower than in the previous year. The payments for 1942 were $1,178,926 compared with $1,206,178 last year.

Tax collection this year will constitute a new record in the opinion of City Commissioner John Hodgson who predicts that 115 per cent of the levy will be collected. If this prediction is achieved an all-time record collection will be established.

Tax collection to the end of November amounted to $1,146,899, an increase of $153,193 over the 11 months of 1941.

Sales of city tax lands and properties in 1942 were well ahead of the previous year and at the end of November $12,396 more than during the 11-months period of 1941. Total sales to Nov. 30, 1942 amounted to $263,589.

Despite curtailment of building activity through governmental restrictions, shortage of labor and lumber, building permits issued by the city totalled well over the three million dollar mark, and were slightly less than the total issued during last year. New dwellings constructed during the year numbered approximately 480.

Bank clearings for the year will create an all-time record for Edmonton. To the end of November the clearings this year were $290,344,981, compared with $238,285,553 for the same period last year $51,058,540.

GROSS REVENUE

Gross revenue from the utilities during the year increased approximately $6,000 over the previous year, but the net profits were slightly below that earned in 1941. This is due to the fact that greater amounts were placed to the credit of the depreciation accounts of the different utilities.

Street railway patronage increased tremendously, and for the first time in recent history the system operated at a profit during the last three months of the year. It is anticipated that patronage during the year will exceed the 20,000,000 mark.

Utility department patronage during the year increased with the power users increasing in number approximately 1,500; telephone department patrons by more than 1,000 and electric light customers by more than 800.

The city's population increased from 93,924 to 95,775, the 1942 figure not taking into account Americans who are now resident here in connection with northern war projects. It is estimated that the population of the city has now exceeded 100,000.

The year saw the completion of the $25,000 sewer extension to serve McKernan Lake district, the completion of the $85,000 administration building at the civic airport, and the start of a $55,000 addition to the C.P. Air Lines hangar space.

The value of the city's assessment increased by $1,245,515, the third consecutive substantial increase.

Court House

The year marked the death of two outstanding judges of the Alberta supreme court. Mr. Justice Clarke, Calgary, of the appeal division, and Mr. Justice C. H. Mitchell of the supreme court trial division.

Mr. Justice W. R. Howson was elevated to the appeal court and Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald and Mr. Justice C. C. McLaurin were appointed to the supreme court trial division.

The Legal Proceedings Suspension act was declared ultra vires the provincial legislature by the Alberta appeal court, and the supreme court of Canada declared the Alberta debt adjustment act ultra vires. Appeal from the latter decision was taken to the Privy Council, the Empire's law officers reserving judgment.

The act amending the Limitations of Actions act passed in 1940 by the provincial government was disallowed by the dominion government.

City Police

The year 1942 will go down in police records as one showing a considerable decline in the amount of crime in the city.

Odd though it may seem, while crime is on the down grade the total amount paid into provincial coffers through the payment of fines has taken a substantial jump upward especially during four of the last five months of the year.

Chief Constable Matthew Blackwood attributes this paradoxical situation to the return of prosperity. Few persons fined now default and serve out the alternative sentences. They have the money with which to pay the fine.

Furthermore, prosperity has brought work to all able bodied persons, and many who landed into police nets before, have no time for any misdeeds at present.

In October of this year $1,157.75 was paid in as compared with $973 for the corresponding month in 1941.

In November the figure was $1,759.60 to make that month's total the largest of any month since the days of prohibition. In November 1941 the total fines paid amounted to $312.10.

Fines for December 1941 amounted to $541.95 while fines for this month are estimated at $1,500.

INCREASES SHOWN

Increases were shown for every month of 1942 except May, June and September. The amounts were doubled in January, February, April, November and December.

Chief Blackwood pointed out further that there has been a substantial increase in petty complaints and reports such as leaving premises unlocked for the night and leaving cars unlocked.

This situation is also the outgrowth of prosperity, Chief Blackwood stated, pointing out that residents are inclined to be somewhat more careless during better times.

This same type of carelessness has been cause in a large percentage of the 1,163 traffic accidents that occurred on city streets during the year.

YEAR'S TOTAL

Though the year's total is down 158 from the 1941 total of 1,321, the decrease is hardly in proportion to the decrease in car usage owing to rubber and gasoline restrictions.

There were 180 persons injured in traffic accidents in 1942 as compared with 159 during 1941. The number of deaths as the result of traffic accidents decreased from six to five.

One year ago the total number of names appearing on the police court docket was 5,200 as compared with 4,100 names on the dockets throughout 1942.

The department reported that deaths from natural causes during 1942 are double the figure of 19 during 1941 and accidental deaths stand at 10 as compared with 13 in 1941.

TWO SUICIDES

There were only two suicides recorded in 1942 as compared with 15 the previous year. There were no murders this year as compared with one in 1941.

Police inquests were held as compared with nine in 1941.

The uniform department reported a general decrease in activities with calls responded to in police cars averaging 350 per month as compared with 610 per month in 1941.

The detective department investigated 3,650 complaints, 300 fewer than in 1941.

Value of property lost and stolen in 1942 amounted to $138,000, as compared with $151,000 in 1941. Of this amount $110,000 worth was recovered, as compared with $130,000 worth the year previous.

SOME CONCERN

Chief Constable Blackwood stated that during the year the question of maintaining the staff to an nearly full strength as possible was the source of some concern but following the lifting of the age limit for the eligibility of prospective constables, the problem was eased considerably.

As for prospects for 1943, Chief Blackwood expressed the opinion that, if anything, the crime situation might drop off even more. Such a situation can be expected as long as the war lasts as employment and enlistments have a direct effect upon the drop, he added.

The Army

Long procession of troop trains carrying husky, grinning troops of the United States Corps of engineers from every state of the union, and train after train, loaded with modern machinery, that rolled through Edmonton for the north last March and April on the way to start construction of the stupendous Alaska Highway, were military highlights of a year crammed with important events.

Edmontonians, accustomed as they were to happenings of great importance, after more than two years of global war, experienced a new thrill, as the Johnny Doughboys of the U.S. Engineers corps rolled into the city, without any advance notice, within hours after announcement that the great strategic highway connecting the U.S. with its great northwestern ramparts in Alaska was to be constructed.

The trains stopped here for only a few minutes and then rolled along to Dawson Creek, jumping-off place for the great highway.

GREAT SIGHT

Although the movement had only a minimum of publicity, citizens flocked to both railway stations at all hours of the day and night to chat with the husky men from south of the border, and to gaze with awe on the great machines loaded on trains of flat cars almost a mile in length in some instances.

These were the men and this was the machinery that was to shatter all existing records for construction by completing a 1,600-mile road through a virgin wilderness "months ahead of schedule."

Edmonton thrilled to the glamor of the new northern adventure in the men and movements surrounding the Burma Road of America. Engineer troops from Texas, Alabama, Georgia and other states of the deep south, were "mobbed" by friendly, curious crowds at the station platforms.

THRILLING INCIDENT

Smokes were passed out to the Yanks and the most thrilling incident of the movement north was a hastily-organized welcome to the troops, with the band from No. 4 T.T.S. playing The Star-Spangled Banner, while the American troops on a train moving through the C.P.R. yards, stood at the salute.

Later, Edmonton came to become more "Americanized" as headquarters in connection with the great north road were opened here and the U.S. army uniform became as familiar as the Canadian on the streets here.

RECRUITING CONTINUES

Recruiting for the active army continued at an encouragingly high level throughout the year, the opening of an uptown recruiting station, at 102 avenue and 101 street, where applicants for all branches of the army, and the Canadian Women's Army Corps, are interviewed, was an outstanding event.

Edmonton also saw first parades of women soldiers during the summer when graduating classes from the C.W.A.C. basic training centre at Vermilion, paraded through the streets.

The importance of women in the armed forces was emphasized with the visit here, late in the summer, of Miss Jean Knox, director of the British Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, Lt.-Col. Ruth Kennedy officer commanding the C.W.A.C. in Canada, also visited Edmonton.

IMPORTANT EVENT

An event of importance also, was the mobilization for active service of the 3rd Battalion, Edmonton Fusiliers under the command of Lt.-Col. H. B. Jamieson, a veteran of the First Great War, and well-known Edmonton contractor, who had headed the Reserve unit.

The 2nd (Reserve) Bn. of the regiment was re-organized under the command of Lt.-Col. H. F. Ryerson, M.C., well-known Edmonton business man.

GROWING IMPORTANCE

Growing importance of the Reserve Army was also pointed out by visits here of Maj.-Gen. B. W. Browne, D.S.O., M.C., director-general of the Reserve Army. He inspected all Reserve Army units here in a special parade at the Prince of Wales Armory. City reserve units again attended training at Sarcee Camp for two weeks in the summer, and new and completely modern equipment has now been received by all units.

Edmonton was also visited by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., general officer commanding-in-chief, Pacific coast command of the Canadian Army. Edmonton is within the Pacific command area and a conference was held with leaders of Alberta units on matters pertaining to the common defence.

Edmonton bade farewell to officers and men of a popular Ontario regiment that had trained here for most of the summer when the Midland Regiment left for "somewhere in Canada."

NEW CENTRE

Establishment of basic training centre No. 133 at Wetaskiwin, was announced in the fall. Troops for this centre have been quartered temporarily in Edmonton, pending completion of the new centre at Wetaskiwin. The centre is under the command of Lt.-Col. E. L. Strickland, a veteran of the First Great War, who is well known in Edmonton.

In veterans' affairs the outstanding event of the year was the election of H. E. Tanner, city high school teacher, as president of Edmonton branches of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L.

It was a busy year in military activities.

The Navy

Recruiting of women for naval service, and expansion of facilities here by construction work at the naval barracks costing an estimated $85,000, were standout features of 1942 as far as naval activities in Edmonton were concerned.

There was also a change in command at the Edmonton naval establishment, or ship, as it is called in sea parlance.

Lt. George L. Crawford, well known Edmontonian, and a son of His Honor Judge J. L. Crawford of the district court, was named officer in command of H.M.C.S. Nonsuch, or the naval barracks on 142 street in Rossdale.

He succeeded Lt. Colin S. Glassco, who had held the command for some months. Lt. Glassco took over command of the Vancouver R.C.N.V.R. establishment.

HIGH FAVOR

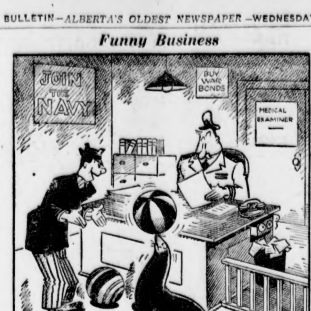
The city recently was visited by



"We'd like to enlist in the mine sweeping service!"

Air Force

Edmonton, with several R.C.A.F. establishments and British Commonwealth Air Training Plan schools here, became even more important as an air centre during 1942.

With the advent of war with Japan, Alaska and the great northwest, became a new Gibraltar—a Gibraltar of the skies, to North America.

The Alaska Highway became an accomplished fact and with it a chain of highly-important air stations between Edmonton and the Yukon were established, by the R.C.A.F., known as the Northwest Staging Route. Headquarters for these stations were established at Edmonton, with Wing Commander C.M.G. "Con" Farrell, D.C.F., in command.

Later, the famed northern pilot was posted to No. 4 air command headquarters at Calgary, and his place was taken here by Wing Commander W. A. McFarlane, a former Edmonton resident, who had been in command of R.C.A.F. stations in Labrador and the Pacific coast.

WINS AWARD

A matter that made Edmontonians particularly proud was the training of an efficiency awarded No. 3 "M" depot of the R.C.A.F. The depot is under the command of Group Capt. Wm. G. Webster, who succeeded Wing Commander J. Cyril Malone as head of the "M" centre during the summer.

Early in the year, air force establishments here had a visit from Air Vice-Marshal W. A. Croll, A.F.C. director for the R.C.A.F. of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

A considerable expansion is taking place at No. 2 Air Observers School, where several new buildings have been added. The No. 2 Elementary Flying Training School was moved to Penhold but facilities were installed here for complete training of navigators and air bombers. First classes of navigators and air bombers to receive their wings here, graduated late in the summer, and were presented with wings by His Honor Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen. Classes have been graduating every two weeks since.

MANAGER

Capt. W. R. "Wop" May, D.B.E., D.F.C., continues as manager of Canadian Pacific Air Lines, and Capt. H. A. Boyd is assisted by Mike Finland, assistant manager of the school, and veteran northland pilot. The R.C.A.F.'s supervisory officer is Flt. Lt. Opie.

No. 4 Initial Training School continued with increased efficiency, under the command of Wing Commander J. A. Hutchison, commanding officer. The school received favorable mention from air command headquarters.

CHANGE IN COMMAND

No. 3 recruiting centre had a change of command, during the year, Flt. Lt. W. Paul Graham of Winnipeg, succeeding Flt. Lt. H. E. Jones, as officer commanding the centre. Flt. Lt. Jones was later promoted to the rank of Squadron Leader and is serving at a west coast operational station.

The air force had a busy and important year in Edmonton.

Commercial Flying

Taking over of the Yukon-Southern Air Transport Co., and United Air Lines, by Canadian Pacific Air Lines, with Grant McConachie, youthful pilot, and aviation enthusiast, as general manager, featured commercial aviation development in Edmonton during 1942.

With the entry of the C.P.R. into commercial transport in the west there was an immediate extension of services, and improvement of equipment and facilities along air routes serving the north.

Daily service between Edmonton and the Yukon, and between Edmonton and Fort Norman, and Yellowknife was put in effect.

Two new Lockheed Lodstars were purchased by C.P.A. and now operate between Edmonton and Whitehorse.

AIRPORT EXPANSION

Erection of the fine new administration building at the airport was rapidly on people of all ages. Chemical Poison Blamed in Deaths Of 3 War Workers

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The fatal poisoning of three war workers from chemicals with which they were working and the illness of approximately 120 other workers, "some so badly affected before preventive measures were taken that they may die," was disclosed last night by Westchester county health officials.

Richard McLaughlin, sanitary commissioner for the Westchester county health department, said two of the persons dead were employed at the Anaconda Wire and Cable Company plant, Hastings-On-Hudson, N.Y.

The third death was that of an employee of the Hazardware Cable and Wire Corporation in Yonkers, N.Y., Eugene F. McGillian, health commissioner for the city of Yonkers, reported.

many will find she has no more sincere and I believe more useful friend in the world than Britain," he said in Berlin in 1937.

Six-feet tall, sharp-featured and looking more like a soldier than a diplomat, he entered the foreign service in 1905, and held posts throughout the world. When he was assigned to Berlin he was regarded as one of the most experienced members of the British diplomatic service.

CRITICIZED, DEFENDED

In the September, 1938, Munich crisis he was criticized and defended alike, for the role he played in Prime Minister Chamberlain's appeasement policy toward Germany.

On Aug. 23, 1939, just before the war began, Sir Nevile flew to Salzburg from London with a communication from Mr. Chamberlain to Hitler, and went back by air Aug. 26 with a report of that conference that also failed to prevent war.

His dispatches describing the last days before Germany attacked Poland were published Dec. 21 1939.

DESCRIBED HITLER

Of Hitler, Sir Nevile wrote that he "Was excitable and uncompromising. His language was violent and unrestrained both as regards Englanee and Poland."

Sir Nevile's hobbies were hunting, fishing and golf and while in Berlin he shared his enthusiasm for shooting with Marshal Hermann Goering, at whose country home he often was a guest.

In the first British white paper on the war, issued Sept. 20, 1939, Sir Neville Henderson reported extensively on his attempts to stave off the war, termed Hitler and National Socialism "the products of the defeat of a great nation in war and the consequent misery and confusion and distress which follows that defeat" and concluded:

"History alone will determine whether Herr Hitler could have diverted Nazism into normal channels, whether he was the victim of the movement which he initiated, or whether it was his own megalomania which drove it beyond the limits which civilization was prepared to tolerate. . . .

"The tragedy of any dictator is that as power increases he becomes steadily and inexorably deteriorates."

U.S. Finds People Can Take Bad News

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(CP)—The United States war and navy departments said today they were wrong when they assumed a year ago that the American people couldn't take bad news in big doses.

The two service departments reversed a rule laid down soon after the United States went to war that restricted the publication of casualty lists to local areas. The new rule, similar to that in effect in Canada, permits unrestricted publication of casualty lists.

The original rule was laid down because it was believed that publication of long casualty lists would have a depressing effect on the morale of the American people. Accordingly, newspapers were restricted to the names within their circulation areas.

Bad Hearing & Head Noises Due to Catarrhal Conditions

Catarrhal deafness and Head Noises need not be neglected any longer since the discovery of an American Chemist. Now it is possible for some of the most obstinate cases of deafness due to catarrh to be relieved by the application of the formula called Spantex. This treatment is soothing with wide success in many countries. Dr. D. 67 years old, writes: "I have used the treatment for only 2 weeks and the hearing in one ear is better. The head noises are also much better." Mrs. H. writes: "My husband, a case of catarrhal deafness, stopping Head Noises and curing Catarrh, that it is offered under an iron-clad money back agreement. areas particularly, had been aggravated by the war.

"The officers of the Canadian Medical Association have in the past not shown themselves at all favorable to progressive measures for the extension of health facilities to the masses of the people," said Mr. Coldwell. "On the contrary they have often opposed proposals for health insurance, state or co-operative medicine, municipal doctors and the like.

"In fact, they have often acted as a professional monopoly, without sufficient regard for the health and welfare of the masses of the people. As a recent example, there are in Canada today a number of refugee doctors who are willing to serve anywhere in our country but who are prevented from doing so by the medical association for reasons which seem to me wrong and unjust.

PLACED IN CONTROL

"Yet this is the organization which you now have placed in control of all medical and health services in Canada."

Mr. Coldwell said he knew of a Saskatchewan area with a population of 7,000 where hospitals had been closed because medical men enlisted or moved away and nurses were unobtainable.

"Appeals to the medical procurement and assignment board and representations to the appropriate department of government have brought no relief," he said.

Monday it was reported from Lucky Lake, Sask., about 100 miles northwest of Regina, that about 7,000 people in an area of more than 8,000 square miles around Lucky Lake are without the services of a doctor. H. C. Grose, overseer of the village, said appeals had been sent to the federal government in an effort to obtain a physician.)

Steamship Sinks In North Storm: All Crew Saved

JUNEAU, Alaska, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Sinking of the steamship Port Orford of San Francisco in a snowstorm the night of Dec. 16 at a point 40 miles southeast of Cape Spencer, Alaska, was announced yesterday.

Capt. Joseph Bretsen of Seattle and the 27 members of the crew were reported safe in Juneau. The vessel was owned by the Port Orford Lumber Company.

She went down in Chatham Strait, off Point Gardner. Reports indicated the vessel ran aground, then pulled free and broke up.

Axis on Defensive

Nazi Hope for Winter Lull Blasted by Red Offensive, Allied Invasion of Africa

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The Allied invasion of North Africa and Russia's great second winter offensive have blasted Germany's hopes of enjoying a "creative pause" during the cold months, the war office said today in its third annual review of the war.

Linking the British 8th Army's success in Libya with the Tunisian campaign, the Russian offensive and the Japanese failure to oust the Americans from the Solomons, the highly-optimistic review declared:

"Not merely was the oriental partner of the Axis fully occupied and on the defensive in his own sphere at the year's end, but the European members of the Axis were themselves on the defensive."

SIGNIFICANT TURN

The year 1942 was declared to have marked a "significant turning point" in the war on land—the passing of the general strategic initiative from the Axis to the United Nations.

First signs that the Axis flood "might be turning to ebb" came Aug. 31, the review said, when Field Marshal Erwin Rommel tried an unsuccessful offensive in Egypt, but it was not until the night of Oct. 23, when Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army attacked Germans and Italians at El Alamein that "the United Nations may be said to have begun demonstrably to capture the initiative."

Discussing the campaign in Tunisia, the review affirmed that there has been "just a chance" that the vanguard of the British 1st Army, if it swept in fast enough Algeria might have been able to seize Tunis and Bizerte before the enemy became too strongly ensconced.

Indeed, it pointed out, advance columns in the opening phases reached a point almost midway between Tunis and Bizerte and seized by some American armored units, captured an enemy airfield at Djedeida, only 12 miles from Tunis, and destroyed 40 Axis planes on the ground.

TASK TOO GREAT

However, the report added, it soon became apparent that the task was too great for the vanguard and that "means more methods, which had been envisaged," would have to be employed. The advance units were withdrawn early in December from their exposed positions and the main army then proceeded to build up itself and its communications.

15,000,000 Men in Armies of Allies

LONDON, Dec. 30—(CP)—Reuters' military correspondent estimated today that the United Nations—not including China—would in 1943 with armies totalling approximately 15,000,000 men. In addition he said, Allied air personnel is approaching the 5,000,000 mark.

The German army, probably 8,000,000 on all its peak, has suffered heavily in casualties in Russia, losing perhaps 4,000,000 in all, the correspondent declared.

Japan, he said, is reported to have an effective army of from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000.

Ontario Limits Sales of Beer

TORONTO, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Hon. A. St. Clair Gordon, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, today announced that retail beer sales in Ontario would be limited to two 12-ounce or two 24-pint cases of beer a day.

The order is effective today.

Mr. Gordon said that the board had ruled that "commencing Dec. 28, 1942, the quantity of beer which may be sold by any brewers' retail store or the retail store of any brewery to any resident must not exceed two 12-quart cartons or two 24-pint cartons or its equivalent in kegs per day."

25 Per Cent. of Canadian Meat Sent to Britain

OTTAWA, Dec. 30.—(CP)—About 25 per cent of Canada's meat supplies during 1942 were sent to the United Kingdom, food supply officials said yesterday in a review of the contribution by the dominion to overseas requirements.

J. Gordon Taggart, foods administrator for the Prices Board and chairman of the Canadian Bacon Board, said about 75 per cent of inspected hog slaughterings this year went overseas to meet British bacon demands. This would not represent 75 per cent of total Canadian slaughterings, however, since considerable numbers were not inspected.

Mr. Taggart said he estimates bacon shipments represent about 25 per cent of the volume of all meats—pork, beef, veal, mutton, chickens and turkey—made available in 1942.

Russ Troops Roll Toward Rostov City

fence against tanks, on Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus.

Tanks, operating by themselves, encircled one batch of 6,000 German troops and killed 1,800, the noon communique said.

1,000 GIVE UP AS UNIT

In another southwest Stalingrad sector a shivering battalion commander voluntarily surrendered the Red army lines to surrender. The Russian sector commander invited him to return to his unit and bring back his men. He did so and surrendered about 1,000 men with all their arms and supplies, the noon communique said.

In the northern factory area of Stalingrad, where the new Russian offensive was assumed, proportions almost as important as that to the southwest, the Russians during the night drove forward against desperate German resistance and smashed 82 block houses and dugouts, killing 300 troops.

TOO WEAPONS

Here among the factories the Russians made their biggest gains since Nov. 19 yesterday. With bayonet and hand grenade, assault troops advanced yard by yard for from 350 to 450 yards in an area where every house was a fortress and every window a firing point for field gun or machine gun.

DOWN 21 TRANSPORTS

They captured a series of workshops and one big factory, took many prisoners and two field guns, 14 machine guns and 14 trench mortars.

Over Stalingrad, the Red Air Force and its anti-aircraft gunners in the single day shot down 31 giant German transport planes which sought to drop food and supplies to the garrison.

On the middle Don front, the noon communique reported the Russians during the night stormed a big inhabited place and against ferocious resistance drove into its suburbs.

In other middle Don sectors, they threw back a succession of counter-attacks by shock troops the German high command was throwing in steadily for diminishing reserves. In only one attack did the Germans regain lost ground. There the Russians attacked again, got back their positions, killed 400 Germans knocked out six tanks and captured ammunition dumps and other important supplies.

CAUCASUS ATTACKS

In the Caucasus, southeast of Nalchik, the Russian artillery spent the night bombarding enemy positions in preparation for new attacks on the noon communique reported. They disabled eight enemy tanks and dispersed and killed many of about 1,000 enemy troops.

Intensifying their offensive operations northwest of Stalingrad, the Russians during the night stormed and captured a tactically important height, the noon communique said. They killed about 400 of the defenders, captured prisoners, and took a quantity of war spoils. German attempts to regain the height were broken with heavy losses, including anti-field guns.

"In this sector Soviet units are fighting for the annihilation of the enemy," the noon communique said.

R.A.F. Strikes at Japs in Burma

NEW DELHI, Dec. 30.—(CP)—R.A.F. Blenheim bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked the Japanese airdrome at Monywa along the Chindwin river in Burma yesterday and scored hits on runways and dispersal bays, a British communique announced today.

The attack was followed with a night raid on the Toungoo air base in central Burma, when bombs were dropped directly on the target area, the communique said.

British fighters also were reported to have carried out offensive patrols over the Mayu river district in western Burma, where British ground troops have been working their way toward Akyab.

Canada Wrote Name in Sky During 1942

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

LONDON, Dec. 30. — (CP) — Canada wrote her name in the air in 1942. Over every battle-front, in Europe, the Middle East, the Mediterranean and the Africas, in Russia, the Far East and at home, airmen of the Dominion have won their wings with a glory unsurpassed in the nation's history.

The accomplishments saw Canada's pilots fly in protective cover over their own soldiers for the first time in this war. This was at Dieppe, which also saw Canada's army co-operation squadrons in heavy action for the first time.

GREATEST YEAR

Air Vice-Marshal W. A. Curtis of Toronto, Deputy Air Officer commanding-in-chief said this of the Canadian Air Force's greatest year.

"The torrent of skilled manpower that the British Commonwealth Air Training plan has spilled into these islands is now overflowing and into every air front in the world at war. . . ."

The contribution by the R.C.A.F. to the year's air successes of the United Nations may be measured by the number of awards for bravery won by Canadians in the past 12 months, 292 Canadian fliers, members of the R.C.A.F., and Canadians in the Royal Air Force were decorated and 29 others were mentioned in dispatches.

The year produced one outstanding Canadian hero, blond Pilot Officer Frederick George Beurling, D.S.O., D.F.C. and Bar, 21-year-old Verdun, Que., fighter ace who led the defenders of the valiant Island of Malta. One of the war's greatest fighter pilots, Beurling destroyed 29 1-3. He is now in Canada.

U.S.O. WINGERS

Beurling was one of four Canadians who won the D.S.O. during the year. The others were Wing Cmdr. John C. Mooser, Fulton of Kamloops, B.C., leader of the famous Moose Bomber squadron, who has been missing since a raid on Hamburg in July; Wing Cmdr. A. C. Brown of Winnipeg, C.O. of a Coastal Command squadron, and Wing Cmdr. Harold Christie of Coastal Command squadron. Beurling, Fulton and Brown are members of the R.C.A.F.

Eight Canadians won bars to the D.F.C., four in the R.C.A.F. and four in the R.A.F. Another 142 won the D.F.C., 73 the D.F.M., 39 the A.F.C., eight the A.F.M., two the George Medal, and 13 the B.E.M.

Yank Planes Sink Two Jap Cargo Ships

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30. — (AP)—American aircraft, operating from Henderson Field on Guadalcanal, in the Solomons, attacked and bombed a Japanese enemy cargo ships off the island and sank two vessels, the United States navy department reported today.

The communique also reported that army and marine troops had killed more than 150 Japanese with a loss of only four men killed and one wounded.

The attack on the cargo vessels occurred at 4:30 p.m. yesterday on the southeast coast of Vanguna Island in the New Georgia group of the Solomons, approximately 120 miles northwest from Henderson airfield.

The communique reported also that marines, in an exchange of artillery and mortar fire, destroyed an enemy mortar and a machine-gun position.

The fleet of Japanese cargo vessels at Wickham anchorage apparently was attempting to bring in supplies to the harassed Jap forces in the Solomons.

The report of the attack came a day after Cmdr. Dwight H. Dexter, 41-year-old coast guard officer just back from the Solomons, told a press conference that the Japanese forces there are weakening.

Issuance of U.S. Finn Information' Releases Stopped

NEW YORK, Dec. 30. — (AP) — The New York Times in a Washington dispatch said today the Finnish information service in New York has been ordered by the state department to cease issuing news releases and pamphlets, and the United States legation in Helsinki has stopped sending out bulletins and other material prepared by the office of war information.

The development does not forecast an immediate rupture of relations between the two countries, the Times said, "but it does point to the direction the wind is blowing."

R.A.F. Soon to Hit New French Areas

LONDON, Dec. 30—(CP)—Indication that the Allies plan to bomb targets in former unoccupied France was seen today in a BBC broadcast to the French to keep away from German headquarters, as well as factories and railway centres being used by the Nazis.

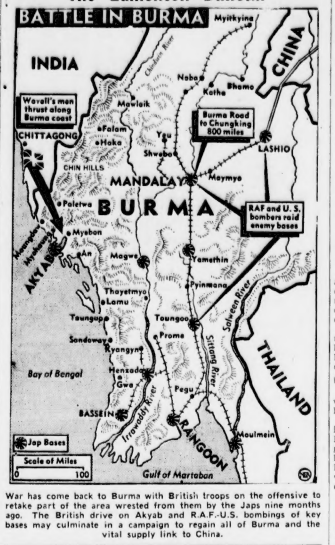
Ration Words

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 30.—(AP) —They're even going to ration words in the California legislature. State Printer George Moore said his office will have only 65 per cent. of its normal crew during the 1943 session. As a partial solution law-makers are planning a 40-day recess instead of the usual 30 days at the end of January.

Daily War Map—Exclusively in The Edmonton Bulletin



War has come back to Burma with British troops on the offensive to retake part of the area wrested from them by the Japs nine months ago. The British drive on Akyab and R.A.F.-U.S. bombings of key bases may culminate in a campaign to regain all of Burma and the vital supply link to China.

Revised List Shows 30 Hurt In Train Crash

LAZARE, Man., Dec. 30—(CP)—A Revised list issued today by the Canadian National Railways showed 30 persons injured, two of them seriously, in yesterday's head-on collision of the C.N.R. passenger trains here.

Twenty-two of the injured were passengers and eight were company employees aboard the trains—the No. 2 Continental Limited and a westbound extra carrying troops.

CONDITION GIVEN

Medical attendants reported Scarpelli's condition as "fair," while Drewnoski was listed as "fair."

Three of the other four persons in the hospital at Rivers, operated by the R.C.A.F., were scheduled to be released today. They included D. R. Graham of Winnipeg, stationed at No. 4 Flying Training School, Saskatoon.

The eastbound Continental Limited crashed into the engine of the westbound military train as the latter was backing into a siding which already held a freight train. The westbound train failed to clear the main line.

Lazare is seven miles east of the Saskatchewan-Manitoba boundary and about 204 miles west of Winnipeg.

Two planes from the Central Navigation school of the R.C.A.F., at Rivers, flew to the scene and picked up the two seriously injured passengers, four who's names were not available, were taken to the Rivers hospital by special train dispatched from Brandon following notification of the accident.

Seriously injured were Sgt. J. Scarelli of Dundurn, Sask., and Tpr. D Drewnoski, of Amherstburg, Ont.

The others receiving hospital treatment are D. R. Graham, of No. 4 Service Flying Training school, Saskatoon; W. G. Gillespie C.N.R. Cook, Winnipeg; J. A. Bourgeois, sleeping car conductor, Norwood, Man., and T. H. Cooperman, news agent, Winnipeg.

Graham suffered possible internal injuries, Cooperman a bruised head, and both Bourgeois and Gillespie, back injuries.

C.N.R. officials said most of the injured suffered only slight cuts and superficial wounds as a result of flying glass from shattered window.

CRASH HEAD-ON

Eyewitnesses said the troop train was backing onto a siding at Lazare when the eastbound train crashed head-on into the former's engine. A freight train was standing on the siding, eyewitnesses said, and the troop train was unable to get clear of the main line.

The engine of the troop train was derailed but did not overturn. None of its occupants was injured.

Shortly after the accident Group Capt. A. Lewis, officer commanding the navigation school at the R.C.A.F. station, Sgdn. Ldr. S. R. Bell, flew here and took the two seriously injured soldiers to hospital. The airmen were forced to land in a stubble field near the station. Both, however executed near-perfect landings and took off without incident.

Many of the passengers on the C.N.R. eastbound train involved in last night's mishap were members of the armed forces either returning from or going on leave. Railway officials estimated there were about 400 soldiers on the troop train.

TCA Will Take Vital Role in World Aviation

MONTREAL, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Belief that Trans-Canada Air Lines will take an "important" part in the development of global aviation when the war is ended and new equipment is available was expressed today by President H. J. Symington in his annual report on T.C.A. activities for 1942.

"Canada occupies an important position in the future of the air world," said Mr. Symington. "It is on the great circle, it is the shortest way and it has favorable weather. International flying across the Atlantic and the Pacific will be dependent upon agreements between governments and T.C.A., Canada's national air line, is destined to be Canada's instrument in such global operations."

PLAN SHORTER ROUTE

Mr. Symington said T.C.A. already has plans for a shorter route across the continent, crossing the Great Lakes to Winnipeg and thence to points of exit in Western Canada and the Yukon territory. He announced that T.C.A. flying boats will be extended from Vancouver to Victoria early in January.

T.C.A. operated, over a route 4,857 miles long, now fly 22,790 miles a day, and in 1942 they carried mail totalling 2,260,000 pounds, an increase of 63 per cent over 1941; express totalling 396,000 pounds, an increase of 24 per cent.

"While it has never lost sight of its function of accelerating the pace of business and unifying, as only a swift communications system can, our broad and diversified dominion, the war comes first,' said Mr. Symington. "Canada's energies now are directed to victory and the largest proportion of TCA business is war business.

MUCH WAR WORK

A heavy burden of war work has been carried out by the engineering and maintenance departments, chiefly in the Winnipeg shops. Thousands of instruments and accessories have been overhauled for the R.C.A.F., the R.A.F., the British Overseas Air Corporation and under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan. TCA has assisted in important experiments for the National Research Council.

The engine substitution program has been advanced. When it is completed early in 1943, all 24 aircraft in the system will be equipped with twin row Wasp engines instead of single units, giving greater power and efficiency and simplifying maintenance.

Mr. Symington said TCA crews are participating in flights across the Atlantic as part of the war effort and TCA ground crews overhaul and maintain the transoceanic transports from Canada.

The extra work has brought an increase in TCA shop forces of approximately 40 per cent.

Allies in Heavy Raids in Africa

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Dec. 30.—Allied bombers and fighting planes have been blasting Axis harbors and supply lines in Tunisia continuously for the last two days, it was disclosed today.

The ceaseless attacks were directed at motor convoys supplying Lt. Gen Walther Nehring's Axis army as well as shipping, bridges and supply depots

General Giraud To Strive For All-Out Effort

The following article on developments in French North Africa is written by Paul-Louis Bret, chief of the London Bureau of the Havas News Agency before the fall of France, who recently took over the French Afrique News Agency with the approval of the Allied authorities.—EDITOR

By PAUL-LOUIS BRET

ALGIERS, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Appointment of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud to succeed the assassinated Admiral Jean Darlan as high commissioner of French North Africa was based on the soundest and most political reasons backed by spontaneous public enthusiasm.

Not only was Gen. Giraud the unanimous choice of the imperial of Mediterranean France as commissioner with full military and civil powers, but he was the choice of the general public as well.

Gen. Giraud was appointed commissioner early Dec. 27 just a few hours after the funeral of Admiral Darlan who was assassinated the evening of Dec. 24).

KNOWN FOR TENACITY

The new high commissioner is well known for his clear views and his tenacity.

It can be assured that under his impulse the general policy of French Africa will have as its first goal an all-out war effort and it is known that he plans to make of the French army in Africa and elite force if possible an "army of liberation."

Although under-armed for this fast-moving modern warfare and hastily disposed, French troops under his command have already shown admirable endurance and courage on the Tunisian front.

Facing a daring enemy with the advantage in material and communications, they pushed a barrier which permitted time for mobilization of reserves and for the organization and evolution of the Anglo-American plan of attack.

MOVE INTO ACTION

Due to Allied collaboration which has already found expression in provision of arms, the combined army the French force now will move into action, not only to liberate French territory, but also for her former place in the world.

Austria Unrest Said Increasing

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(BUP)—Unrest was reported increasing in Austria, and the British Broadcasting Corporation today said seven Austrians, one a woman, had been executed for "resistance to the Nazi terror since the arrival of executioners announced by the Nazis themselves.

"These invaders were having an increasingly hard time in Yugoslavia. Radio Moscow reported that Yugoslav patrol parties in fighting east of Livno, in northwestern Yugoslavia, 40 miles from the Adriatic, had dislodged 3,000 Axis soldiers and captured a village of Shumitsa and Tomislavgrad.

In the Petsinya area, patriots had annihilated an Italian force after big-scale fighting, radio Moscow said. The Axis armies were reported retreating and burning villages in reprisal.

Red Victory Dooms Nazis At Stalingrad

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP)—As British military sources said tonight that Russian capture of the key railroad centre of Kotelnikovski means annihilation of what remained of the members of Germany's 6th army around Stalingrad.

The Russian advance inflicted what British sources hailed as a "first class defeat" for the Germans. Kotelnikovski is a key railroad on the Stalingrad Krasnodor railroad about 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad.

"Its capture means the extermination of Col.-Gen. Hermann Von Hoth's 6th Army, or what remains of its 22 divisions surrounded on the Volga because the only chance the Germans had of getting relief through was along the railway," the British military source said.

"Have Everything"

Latest Model Ram Tanks Pride of Canadian Crews

By ROSS MUNRO

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 30.—(CP)—The troop of tanks from the 1st Hussars of London, Ont., swept over the bumpy ground like a razzle-dazzle backfield breaking around the end for a touchdown.

"We're going to take out the 'ant' in the grove ahead," said the troop commander, Lieut. Roy Coons, speaking into the intercommunication wireless in our tank. "Ant" to tankmen is antitank gun.

We bounced over the hummocks and ditches. Perched in the gunner's seat by the breach of a powerful gun, and surrounded by intricate tank paraphernalia, I peered intently through the gun sights and lined on.

OTHERS FAN OUT

The other ram tanks fanned out on our left and with earphones tight on my head I heard Lieut. Coons giving rapid-fire instructions over the wireless in armored corps jargon.

Messages went back and forth and made you think of the day you listened in on a rural party line.

Careening into a hollow a few hundred yards from the target, our tank halted and fired smoke bombs. Inside the turret, all you could hear was a "pop" like a cork coming out of a bottle.

An elderdown of smoke billowed up in front of the target and we advanced again just as the other tanks came crashing around on a flank to "knock out" the gun.

SPEEDY WORKOUT

It was a speedy little workout for the crews in these new model ram tanks which are the pride of the Hussars.

This new ram has about everything the tankmen want—good guns, fine engine, an amazing wireless and equipment in the tanks ranging from shells and medical supplies to cooking utensils and water tins.

You take over as crew commander on the move back to camp," said Lieut. Coons, so I proposed myself up in the turret of his Ram with the earphones on, clicked a couple of switches and found I could send messages to the others, "troop advance in line astern."

There were messages to our own driver as well as "driver right, driver left" and we clattered along the road at an amazing pace. With the other troop commanders, I could have wireless conversation about the speed, the weather and so forth.

6 Convicts Escape From Ontario Jail

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 30.—(CP) —Six prisoners, two under seven year sentence for armed robbery, escaped last night from the Essex county jail at Sandwich, after prying off a door in the bull pen and slugging two guards, one of whom is in hospital.

Police said the prisoners who escaped are:

James A. Browning, 19, negro, Windsor, and Archie Scott, 22, negro, Windsor, both sentenced to seven years and waiting transfer to penitentiary; Leo Piche, 19, Detroit; Louie Rainone, 19; Thos. Brice, 19, and John Turgeon, 19, of Windsor.

After breaking through the bull pen door, the prisoners attacked two guards and took keys to the jail's front door. Detectives said no trace has been found of the prisoners who beat one of the guards so severely he required hospital treatment.

Axis Reinforces Cyclades Isles, Reports State

ANKARA, Turkey, Dec. 29—(Delayed)—(AP)—The Cyclades Islands, guarding the Aegean Sea approaches southwest of Athens, are being reinforced by the Axis, reports from the Balkans said today.

The same sources said garrisons were being reduced on Axis-occupied islands in the northern Aegean, notably on Lesbos, which commands the southern approach to the Dardanelles. It is off the west coast of Turkey.

New Greek guerilla activity against the occupation forces was reported on the mainland. A train carrying munitions and about 500 German and Italian troops was wrecked and thrown into a ravine, Balkans reports said.

More than half of the men were killed and the munitions believed destined for Africa, exploded, the report added.

Occupation of the Cyclades and of Lesbos was announced by the Germans May 6, 1941.

Italians garrisoned the Cyclades, including Amorgos, Anaphe, Ios, Thera, Naxos and Paros. Naxos is the largest and most fertile. Ninety miles northwest of Naxos is Athens. Crete is 110 miles south.

A Happy Ending

It is good news that the teacher strike in the Vegreville district has been settled. When schools are closed one of the most important interests of the people in the area is affected, and in less degree the interest of the public at large. Sixty-two schools have been closed in the Vegreville territory for two months. That is a serious matter for hundreds of children, who must struggle through the remainder of the year under a heavy handicap.

Much credit is due to Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education, for his untiring efforts to keep the teachers and trustees in touch and to bring the negotiations to a successful conclusion.

The root cause of the trouble was not local. It is general—the scandalously low salaries paid to country school teachers. However it is to be brought about, the Alberta school system cannot function with full efficiency until there is a minimum salary applicable everywhere in the province and large enough to correspond with the importance of the work the teachers are required to do.

France's Colonies Safe

Just about the time Laval was telling the world by radio that the garrison of French Somaliland was fighting a British-Free French invading force, the flag of the Fighting French was being hoisted over the territory of Djibouti after "a friendly chat" between the commandant and the British commander.

The Somaliland capital was the last scrap of French territory in Africa recognizing the authority of Vichy. The rest of that colony had already passed into Allied control, and most of the garrison Laval talked about had quit the place and joined the Allied forces.

With the exception of Indo-China—which Vichy handed over to the Japanese on the strength of getting out of a promise that it may be returned—the entire French Empire oversea is now on the side of the Allies, under their protection, and held in trust by them until the day they can hand it back to a restored and sovereign France.

In men and materials the resources of the French colonies are immense. The location of the African colonies is even more important than their great reservoir of manpower and supplies. In the West and the East Indies the French possessions are important both for their positions and for the materials they can provide of kinds which the Allies need—and which the Axis powers need still worse.

The winning of this great and widely scattered Empire to the Allied side is a major victory for the Allies and for France. Had Laval been able to carry through his plot to put the manpower and the resources of these colonies under control of Hitler and Vichy, the war outlook would be vastly different. Had he even been able to keep them closed areas to the Allies, our difficulties would have been multiplied, all the way from Europe to the South Pacific.

Rolling Along

The Russians claim to have recaptured nearly 12,000 square miles of territory in the middle Don sector in ten days; an area about as large as that from Edmonton to Red Deer and eastward in a line running north and south through Vermilion.

This is only one of six sectors in which the Red Army is on the attack, from Velikie Luki to the central Caucasus, and reporting consistent headway.

The recapture of territory buried deep in snow is not of itself immediately important. The location of the territory, the direction of the advance, and the enemy troops disposed of, give more significance to the multiplied offensives.

The object in hitting at so many points apparently is to keep the Nazis from shifting troops from one sector to another. Or, on the contrary, to keep them so busy doing this that men and equipment wear out or get bogged in snow without accomplishing anything.

Which offensive is intended to be the "real" one eventually, outsiders—like the enemy—can only guess. Naturally the twin drives toward Rostov engage most reader attention. For the reason that should these succeed the Caucasus oil fields will again be barred to Hitler, and Nazi forces estimated to be a million strong will be cut off from supporting bases and from the defence line farther north.

Both these drives are getting dangerously near to effective. The one on Stalingrad is said to be within 80 miles of Rostov, that from Voronezh not more than 100 miles away. This explains Berlin's statement that Nazi forces in the Caucasus have been "drawing back". It would seem to be time, unless the Corporal Fuehrer has built up defences the Russians don't know about somewhere not far ahead of their advancing columns.

His main object, Herr Hitler has said on more than one occasion, is to destroy the Red army, which he obviously must do if he is to hold the territory he has grabbed. Berlin does not even claim that he is making any progress with the undertaking at present, while Moscow counts 120,000 Nazi soldiers killed or captured in the middle Don sweep alone. To which figures must be added whatever number of enemy wounded were carried away by their retreating comrades.

Unless stopped while it is young, an offensive usually tends to gather weight and momentum, like a snow-ball rolling down hill. The enemy has apparently failed to stop the Russian offensive anywhere in the early stages, though he has fought stubborn and costly battles in the attempt. Whoever comprises the present German general staff will get no satisfaction in pondering the implications.

What is left of the Afrika Korps is reported to have reached Tripoli. Nothing is said as to the whereabouts of the Italian vanguard. As Tripoli is lesss than 200 miles from the Tunisian border, Mussolini's speedy pace-makers must be nearing the boundary line and liable to run into the French forces any day. Perhaps they hurried ahead so they could have the honor of capturing the French colony and making good Benito's long-standing threat? Perhaps.

Canned, dried and frozen fruits and vegetables are to be rationed in the United States. Because these foods can be most easily supplied to United States and other Allied soldiers overseas when prepared in these ways. Civilians will therefore do with about 13 pounds less each per year. But they will still be able to get 33 pounds each; and ample supplies of raw fruits and vegetables. If Canadians are not called upon to make a similar shift in their habits it will probably be because we already use less of these processed foods, and more in the condition in which they come off the trees and vines and out of the ground.

Personal Savings Must Be a Resolution for 1943

Everyone Will Have to Guard Consumption of Goods to Win War

By HAROLD L. WEIR

Among your good resolutions for the new year, chalk up in big red letters the necessity for rigid personal saving.

The Third Victory Loan has been brought to a highly successful conclusion, but the saving must go on. It must be perpetual and constant.

Important as this saving of money is to ourselves for post-war needs, important as it may be as a means of financing governmental expenditure and as one of the expedients used to curb inflation, is of more importance is Harold L. Weir deeply overshadowed by another type of saving—a saving of which the "money saving" may be called, after the fashion of an ecclesiastical definition, the outward and visible sign of the inward and spiritual grace"

The really important saving consists of refraining from making other than necessary calls on Canadian production and Canadian labor.

Armed Forces First

Our soldiers, our sailors, our airmen, must be well fed—we must export food to Britain.

Our armies in the air, on the ground and on the sea must be well clothed and equipped. We must build ships, guns, tanks and all the machinery of warfare.

"Pass the ammunition" is more than a slogan; it is a grim necessity. These things are a first charge on our resources and our labor. These things our production must provide.

Both the desert heat and the Arctic cold fight on the side of the best prepared armies.

The clothing equipment for our 600,000 men and women in uniform is a $700,000,000 job, and this equipment must be replaced at more rapid rates than civilian clothing.

Wool, cotton, silk, nylon have each a part to play: wool in the clothing, blankets etc.; cotton in webbings, tarpaulins, packs and harness to carry the packs.

But silk had to make the greatest adjustments. Stockings were taken from silk hosiery and put into parachutes, and when silk stocks failed nylon was ready to serve.

If we blame ourselves that we allowed business to trade scrap for silk for our stockings, we may take a little joy in thinking that out of silk for our stockings, we may take chute with which men trained to bomb Tokyo.

More important yet, we may take pride in that there was no holdup in the parachute industry for lack of proper textiles.

When we consider that the textile industries are now producing as much for military needs as they used to for the entire 11 millions in Canada we can see the need for civilians to curtail their demands.

Foods

The same truths apply to foods. We have to substitute wisely.

Waste may have been foolish at any time; at any rate now it is criminal it matters not how much you put into victory bonds and certificates, if you are squandering food and clothing you are sabotaging the war effort.

Canadian production must supply our war needs—civilian needs must "sing small" until victory is won. And do not call it a sacrifice.

If you feel that way about it, read the casualty lists, think of the Army in Libya, Malaya, Java, Hong Kong, or somewhere on the Seven Seas; think of the suffering people of the conquered countries, of Liddice, of the Russian battlefront.

Unless war touches us a bit nearer than with a bit of rationing, a narrowing of choice in clothing and employment, a minor shortage in this or that, we cannot honestly speak of sacrifice.

Real Costs

We speak of war costs in terms of money, because in our day it has become the measure of things, but the millions and billions of war budgets are not the real costs.

The real costs are the materials, the labor, the time, the training and fighting of our armies, our navies and our air arms, the lives, the suffering and the sorrow, the shattered lives, "the blood and sweat and tears"—these are the real cost of war. The cost in an economic sense.

If we waste labor and material, if we pamper ourselves demanding the living standards of yesteryear we are not serving our country.

Save money as the "outward sign, invest it in government securities as good business and faith in our country, but as a patriotic service let us be satisfied with a minimum demand on Canadian industry.

Let that serve our military needs to the limit.

Our self-denial will contribute to victory.

Gold Has Nothing to Do With Financing of the War Now

By G. G. McGEER, K.C., M.P.
(Vancouver-Burrard)

There was a time, not so many years ago, when the people were led to believe that the supply of money available for human needs was limited by the available supply of gold. They were amazed by the power of Germany and Japan to finance so magnificent a structure for reconstruction and preparation for war, although the gold resources of those nations were known to be negligible.

For some strange reason, the people of the United States and the British Empire continued to exchange nickel, tin, lead, zinc, copper and scrap iron for gold. The Japanese and then Germany were quite willing to give up their gold in exchange for the metals that they could convert into planes, ships, tanks and guns.

All too late, our people came to the realization that they had been exchanging the useful metals for a useless one. They found, to their dismay, that, in wartime, the huge hoard of $20 billion dollars worth of gold in the vaults of the United States government was valueless. So much was this so that the United States ordered a "Cease production" in the gold mines of the United States, and the Dominion of Canada threatened to follow suit, for our Dominion had learned that it could finance a 1942 war budget of $4,500,000,000 without gold reserves.

War Finance

Canada, as everyone knows, has been financing her internal expenditure inexpenent of gold since the commencement of the war. The gold we had on hand and have been able to produce since the war began has been used exclusively for part of the payment of the purchases in the United States.

The part The Bank of Canada has played in our existing system of a goldless managed currency marks a new era in the history of Canada. The Bank of Canada now has investments in Government bonds totalling, in round figures, a thousand million dollars. The Bank of Canada has financed this investment by the issue of Bank of Canada currency notes, $665,659,000 being now in circulation, together with $246,000,000 which the chartered banks of Canada have on deposit with The Bank of Canada, or a total of more than $900,000,000.

These facts, quite apart from anything else, would certainly justify the establishment of The Bank of Canada as the outstanding national institution. Whatever profit The Bank of Canada makes out of its investment of a billion dollars' worth of Government bonds belongs to the people of Canada. To the extent we are financing ourselves with our own cash. A few years ago, this practice would have been condemned as unsound, and those who dared to advocate the establishment of such an institution for any such purpose would have been repudiated as cock-pots and funny money visionaries.

Chartered Banks

The Bank of Canada, however, is not the only bank which has investments in government bonds. According to the last figures, our chartered banks hold government bonds to the value of $2,000,000,000, or slightly more than double the value of all other holdings in the Bank of Canada. Since the declaration of war, the increase of government bonds held by the chartered banks totals $870,142,191. Current loans have increased by 150 millions of dollars, making their total increase in loans and investments in government bonds by our chartered banks since the war began, roughly, one billion dollars.

It is surely a fair question to ask how have the chartered banks financed this huge increase in investment since the war began. Well, it is not by virtue of any increase in bank subscribed and paid up capital, which, in 1939, on the date of the declaration of war, was $145,000,000, and still remains at that figure, except for what is invested in bank premises, leaving the actual working capital of the chartered banks at $72,500,000.

Bookkeeping

The chartered banks have not paid the government cash. They have a much simpler method. They have merely exchanged with the governments, for bonds received, bookkeeping entries under which the government was privileged to write cheques on so-called bank deposit accounts for the payment of goods and services.

As a result of this practice, the so-called deposits of the chartered banks have been increased, since the war began, by almost the same amount that is shown in the chartered banks' increase of investment in government bonds and current loans. The increase in the chartered bank deposits since the war began amounts to $962,000,000. The increase in investment in government bonds and current loans during the same period totals $921,000,000.

This is made possible by our existing bank laws and bank practices, which permit the chartered banks to expand their holdings of Bank of Canada cash into bank deposits of twenty times their value, but which the banks, in practice, limit to ten times the value of the Bank of Canada cash.

Holdings

Since the war began, the chartered bank holdings of Bank of Canada cash have increased from 258 millions to 358 millions, or a total increase of one hundred million dollars.

The chartered banks in turn have expanded this one hundred million dollars into an increase of $962,000,000 of bank deposits, so-called, which they have exchanged for approximately the same amount of government bonds and current loans.

What is the difference—one might well ask—in the method of financing employed by the Bank of Canada and that which the chartered banks of Canada use? Well, the difference is very great. When the Bank of Canada purchases government bonds, it issues Bank of Canada bills, the legal tender cash of the people of Canada. The debt represented in the bond purchased, however, is owned by the Bank of Canada, which, in turn, is owned by all the people of Canada.

When the chartered banks purchase government bonds, they issue bookkeeping entries alleged to be bank deposits in a system under which the chartered banks can buy, with Bank of Canada cash, ten times as many bonds as the Bank of Canada can buy with its own money.

But what is still worse, the debt represented in the bonds held by the chartered banks is a debt of all of the people of Canada to the banks, or just a few of the people of Canada, and the profits made out of the investment in government bonds are paid by all of the people of Canada to the chartered banks, which are owned by a few of the people of Canada.

Under this practice, the chartered banks of Canada are enabled to expand Bank of Canada cash by ten times its value for the purchase of government bonds. Was there ever conceived a more outrageous device by which the few could profit at the expense of all?

When the Government sells, or allows the chartered banks to purchase Government bonds with bank deposits, the Government itself induces the chartered banks to pump new deposit money directly into circulation, with inflationary results. It constitutes a far more dangerous system of inflation than that caused by the issue of national currency, because bank deposits constitute inflation of debts, and inflation of debts mean not only inflation of purchasing power but inflation of taxation, because increased bank deposits mean inflation of debt.

Inflation

Wouldn't it be better for everybody if the Bank of Canada financed the expenditures of Government in wartime and as well as in peacetime. Such a practice, all of the people of Canada would owe all of their own debts to themselves, and debt inflation, the most dangerous of all forms of inflation would cease to be a threat against national security and an orderly rate of economic progress.

The lessons learned in the financing of the last war were forgotten, but the lessons being learned in the financing of this war must be understood and applied if the experiences of post-war deflation and depression suffered after the World War are to be avoided, when the victory which we hope is now on the way is made final and complete.

Cheese Is Not Just Cheese

Art Is Old as History But Canadians Not Lovers Of the Food

BY B. L. W. IN THE OTTAWA JOURNAL

The making of cheese is as old as history. Primitive people realized that the food value of milk could be preserved for long periods only in this form, and whole mountains have become famous the world over mainly because of the famous cheese their people produced. In many lands cheese is a main article of diet. It is food energy in a highly concentrated form, easily stored and easily kept. It has always been a popular type of food in hunting.

However with the people of other countries may be of the quantity and quality of their cheese this cannot be said of Canadians. Yet Canada ranks high among cheese-producing countries —more than 200 million pounds were made this year alone—and for over 50 years this farm product has been one of our largest export commodities. In British Canadian cheddar cheese for years has commanded a premium price as a superior food product. They asked for more of it as soon as war broke out, and have continued to ask for increased quantities. Here at home we call it "rat trap cheese", and we think fondly of the days when we could get imported varieties.

It is usual for the people of a city to be highly conscious of, and to take pride in, the products of industries closely related to it. But the people of Ottawa are hardly aware of the fact this city is the hub of one of the largest cheese producing areas in the world. This year some 72 million pounds of cheddar cheese were made within about a 150 mile radius of the capital, a gross value of more than $17,000,000—as large as the total pre-war civil service payroll in Ottawa.

There are over 400 small cheese factories in eastern Ontario to which some 15,000 farmers ship milk. So something like 50,000 people between Kingston and the Quebec border depend on this industry for their main income.

Fine Points

Canadians never have been great cheese eaters and few of them appreciate the fine points of the product their own country is famous for abroad. Of the 200 million pounds made here this year, somewhere between 40 and 50 million pounds will be consumed at home—but most of these will go mainly to Britain, with small amounts to other Empire countries, and a considerable export to the United States. That is about the usual division one-quarter of our make consumed at home. Too often this has been the poor quarter, much of which the graders would not pass for export. We have frequently eat less cheese than most people.

Eastern Ontario has always been the cheese-producing area of Canada. This year the province as a whole produced about 125 million pounds, of which 72 million was made in the big triangle from just west of Kingston to Quebec on the east. Ottawa valley this year have stepped up production from 25 to 60 million pounds.

Present county leaders, the Ottawa river, produces more cheese than any other eastern Ontario area over 8,000,000 pounds this year. Only Hastings county, up in central Ontario, produces more, Hastings county with over 8,500,000 pounds; Leeds and Stormont with over eight million; Dundas with seven and a half million; Carleton with well over six and a half million; Russell over seven, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac with each over nine million, and Lanark with three and a half million. It's a big industry in every county of the district.

Milk Supply

When war broke out Britain asked Canada for more cheese. Owing to increases in population here, with consequent demands on the milk supply, our exports of cheese to Britain had been consistently declining. We had reached an all-time low just a few years before the war, and had started a slight upcurve. Cheese was a type of food they wanted in Britain during the blitz, energy-giving highly concentrated, easy to store, easy to handle and ration. Easter Canada farmers responded to the call, increased the amount available for export by about 20 million pounds or more. Plans to increase this year alone was 12 million pounds over 1941.

There was no loss in quality as a result of mass production. Few products we make in Canada achieve such a high standard of quality as does our cheese. In eastern Ontario this year 90 per cent of the 72 million pounds made was first-grade, ready for export. That is an enviable record. Just recently the British Food Ministry thanked Canadian farmers for the high standards they are maintaining while at the same time increasing production.

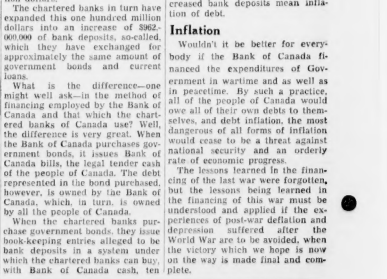
Few people here know much about the cheese that is produced in such huge quantity all around them. Cheese is cheese, and that's that. Well, Ontario cheddar cheese, unfortunately for our eating habits, does not come in the big round cheese that we export. When Export Food Show at the Experimental Farm last week Dr. Swaine of Guelph said he would "like to see us back a hunk of that championship cheese". True, there was a time when Canada sent more than 15 tons of it, and most better than average make, but little of it was ready for eating.

Right there is the great difference between Ontario cheddar and the factory-made cheese of most other countries. Our cheese is not pasteurized; it improves with age, careful storing and constant turning. As a raw product, just out of the factory, it may score highly, yet is hardly fit to eat. Two years later that same cheese will likely be fit for any table in the world, and highly appreciated by the connoisseur. It improves with age, if properly kept.

Apathy

This very fact may account for the apathy shown by most Canadians towards their own special brand of cheese. It has always been sought after by the big British import houses who were used to handling cheddar and knew how to keep and mature it properly. Their buyers in Canada were always on the lookout for the best of the crop. Then when packaged and processed cheese came into favor the manufacturers of this product found they needed large quantities of Canadian cheddar to blend with cheese from other areas and so give flavor to their product. The net result was that our own people were left mainly with the seconds and off-flavor cheese, and a great deal of poor stuff was sold in our stores.

In more recent years this lack of appreciation on the part of the majority of Canadians has been lessened somewhat as a result of many high-grade groceries making a specialty of good Canadian cheddar. They have learned to mature it properly as the British firms always have. After the war, if we must stop shipping most of our good cheese to Britain, Canadians may get to know it better.



"So Your Husband's Gone To War!" by Ethel Gorham is a book that Canadian wives and sweethearts have been waiting for. It is a best-seller. It begins in this newspaper soon—one of the most important, timely books the war has produced thus far.

Here's a quick look at the contents that have made this a handbook for every Canadian woman.

What to do about everything from budgets to loneliness . . . how to hold the home fort, get a job or volunteer . . . what to do about wolves in friend's clothing, make a success of furlough marriage, get along on less . . . how to keep yourself up in spite of the war, worry and work . . . what kind of letters to write, what to tell your children about war and how to reconcile your wartime pride and prejudices.

Remember: This is only a glimpse of this wise and witty book. Read it all in this paper starting soon.

Mills Are Buyers On Grain Market

WINNIPEG, Dec. 30—(CP)—Fair mill buying in wheat was reported on Winnipeg grain exchange today. The demand was largely in the May future which, however, dropped ⅛ cent to 93¼ cents a bushel. December closed unchanged at 90 cents a bushel.

Export business disclosed 500,000 bushels Canadian wheat taken by the United Kingdom and 300,000 bushels sold to Switzerland.

In the cash wheat market spreads were mostly unchanged with odd cars of the lower grades changing hands.

Southern houses made purchases of more than 1,000,000 bushels oats futures and 1,000,000 bushels barley futures.

In addition 300,000 bushels cash oats were worked to southern points from stocks at the Canadian lakehead.

Country marketings at Winnipeg yesterday totalled 614,000 bushels compared with 404,000 bushels a year ago.

Grain inspections at Winnipeg totalled 355 cars against 627 last year.

Dominion Plans Refunding Issue

OTTAWA, Dec. 30—(CP)—Negotiations and preparations are under way for a $90,000,000 offering of Dominion bonds in the United States, a finance department spokesman said, but the official announcement will not be made "for several days."

This official confirmed a report from New York that the issue was being considered, and that the proposed loan would be used for refunding a like amount of five per cent 30-year Dominion bonds expiring May 1, 1952.

The offering would constitute the first substantial Canadian loan flotation in the United States in many years. There will be an official statement when details of the operation are completed.

Total value of the issue to be refunded, the five per cent. bonds expiring May 1, 1952, is $100,000,000. By the terms of their original sale they are now callable.

Whether the total issue of refunding bonds will be for the full $100,000,000 or for the $90,000,000 as announced in New York will not be made known until the finance department issues an official statement.

Naval Equipment Will Be Exhibited Across Dominion

TORONTO, Dec. 30—(CP)—Fifteen tons of naval equipment rolled into Toronto today on special cars to be set up for the Canadian Naval War Exhibition opening Jan. 4 under auspices of the Navy League of Canada.

In an effort to "bring the navy to the people," by way of a coast-to-coast tour, the display will first be shown in Toronto.

Including in the exhibition will be torpedoes, a magnetic mine, model fighting ships, guns and pom-poms—all the latest gadgets devised to fight the enemy on the high seas.

Montreal's Snow Removal Problem Wins Over Garbage

MONTREAL, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Due to the shortage of manpower in Montreal, city officials were faced with a decision whether snow or garbage removal was more important. The snow problem won out and yesterday squads of men and trucks from the incineration department were busy clearing away a recent snowfall. However, officials said they expected garbage removal to be back to normal today.

BELLEVUE, Dec. 30—(CP)—Miss Dorothy Turner, 30, was found dead in bed yesterday and is believed to have died of a heart seizure. She was the only daughter of F. J. Turner, retired Bellevue coroner.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, Dec. 30—(CP)—The stock market closed firm today in moderate trading.

Industrials were strong. Home rails gained fractions to almost a point. Oils eased: Kaffirs were irregular, diamonds quiet and teas higher.

Chicago Cereal Prices Fluctuate

CHICAGO, Dec. 30—(AP)—Wheat trade confusion following announcement of the new flour price ceiling was reflected today in nervous cereal price fluctuations.

A late wave of profit-taking and hedging sales cut wheat prices to the day's lows just before the final bell and they closed ½-¾ cent lower. Corn was ⅝-1 lower, oats ¾-½ off, rye 1-1¼ down.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

WHILE the prospect of competition between members of the armed forces of Canada and the United States may be something entirely new and "just around the corner" for the eastern part of the Dominion, it certainly will not be the "first wartime international competition for representatives of American and Canadian forces," as claimed in today's press dispatches from Toronto.

Members of the forces of the two countries have already met here on several occasions and in fact better still, an inter-service basketball league playing in Edmonton under a regular schedule since early fall, includes a team from the United States Army Air Corps. An American sextet is also expected to enter the service hockey league which gets under way next week.

The inter-service hoop league is made up of No. 3 "M" Depot, Edmonton Garrison, U.S. Army Air Corps, No. 4 I.T.S., No. 2 A. O.S. and Navy.

This is in addition of course to the eight-club City Basketball league which includes four American teams—U.S. Army Engineers, Alcans (nearly all of whom are from the U.S. Signal Corps), Air Transport Civilians (Northwest Airlines) and Bechtel, Price and Callahan.

EIGHT FROM WINNIPEG

MANITOBA and in particular Winnipeg have always been noted for producing top-flight hockey talent and plenty of it, but the overwhelming percentage of players from that part of Canada comprising the current No. 4 I.T.S. team is none-the-less a surprise.

The fact that eight of the 10 claim Winnipeg as their home city is just a little startling—even more so than that three are former "Monarchs", who year in and year out come up with one of the best junior aggregations in the Dominion. Two have played with Elmwood Millionaires, another name to conjure with in western junior circles.

Alan McMurdy, one of the members of the I.T.S. squad will also be remembered as the boy with the extremely potent left foot and who did such effective booting for the No. 3 "M" Depot team during the early games in the junior football league this fall. This boy really can kick. The fact that he is one of the current graduates from I.T.S. is merely a reminder that when he was lost to the "M" Depot gridders, he was never very far removed from Clarke Stadium after all and was able to witness several of the playoff games.

I.T.S. ENCOURAGES SPORTS

IT WAS of special interest to this corner to learn that over at I.T.S. the boys are encouraged to engage in all outdoor sports and "contact" games are included in the list.

The school has an excellent supply of sports equipment and amongst many other items there are no less than 80 pairs of hockey skates and boots, adequate hockey outfits for all who may wish to take part in the game and even 20 pairs of skiis for those who prefer the great Norwegian pastime. And by the way, this equipment has not been provided at the expense of the R.C.A.F. either, but out of their own I.T.S. canteen funds.

And it must be a source of considerable satisfaction to Wing Commander J. A. Hutchison, officer commanding the school and other members of the staff, that although practically all of the present hockey team had the opportunity to become attached to some other school where they might be playing in some organized league, they preferred to come to No. 4 I.T.S. in order to get right along with their respective courses.

Allan Cup Games in West and Begin April 13

Western Junior Finals Start April 1

Memorial Cup Series To Be Held in East

MONTREAL, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Allan cup finals will be in the west this season, with Memorial cup finals in the east, the central committee of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association decided Tuesday.

Lone exception to the tentative division of the senior and junior series provides for the first two Allan cup final games in the Thunder Bay district and remainder in the east should a Thunder Bay team be representing the west in the finals.

Dates for the senior finals were set for April 13, 15, 17, 19 and 21 in the best-of-five series.

The final eastern series is scheduled to open April 2 with the Quebec-Ontario winners playing on the ice of the Ottawa-Maritimes winner, the Maritimes to choose ice in Ontario or Quebec for their home games should they enter the eastern finals.

The series alternates between the two home ices April 5, 7, 9 or 10, and 12.

Manitoba meets Thunder Bay in series A of the western playdowns, with all games to be played in the Thunder Bay district March 9, 11, 13, 15 and 17.

B.C. VERSUS ALBERTA

In series "B" British Columbia plays Alberta on Alberta ice March 18, 20, 22, 25 and 27. Meanwhile, the winner of series "A" will meet Saskatchewan winner March 30, 22, 24, 27 and 29. The western finals will be staged April 1, 3, 6, 8 and 10 with location to be decided later.

The eastern junior finals start April 6 at Toronto or Ottawa, switch to Montreal or Maritimes April 8 and then alternate April 9 or 10, 12 and 14. Should a Maritime team be in the eastern finals they will choose an Ontario or Quebec ice.

The Memorial cup finals will be staged at Toronto April 17, 19, 21, 24 and 26, according to the tentative schedule.

WESTERN JUNIOR

In the west, Thunder Bay plays Manitoba at Manitoba ice March 20, 22, 24, 26 and 29, with the Alberta-Saskatchewan series to be arranged later. For the western finals, all games will be in Winnipeg unless the Edmonton Arena is available. They will be staged April 1, 3, 5, 7 and 9.

Setting of the tentative play-off dates was made at a Tuesday meeting of the central committee that replaced the usual semi-annual meeting of the C.A.H.A.

Discussion of wartime regulations, including the problem that arose out of the Q.S.H.L. ruling on former National League players were left over with Past-President George Dudley and President Frank Sargent who will confer with military authorities. The Q.S. H.L. ruling limited former N.H.L. players to four per game for any team had been expected to raise considerable discussion at the meeting.

CALDER NOTIFIED

President Sargent said that Monday's recommendation to the executive that N.H.L. teams be allowed to borrow a player from an amateur team for one game without affecting his amateur status had been communicated to President Frank Calder of the N.H.L.

Purpose of the proposed move was to assist professional clubs which had been hit by injuries and enlistments, he said, adding that the C.A.H.A. was anxious to assist the N.H.L.

The Q.A.H.A.'s request for permission for Joe Desroches of Montreal to play with Quebec Morton Aces was granted.

Bruins Finally Lose at Home

Franks Withstands Barrage As Rangers Beat Boston 5-3

BOSTON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The rehabilitated New York Rangers, thanks to the superb goal-tending of their Jim Franks, drubbed Boston 5-3 Tuesday night for the Bruins' first home setback in 11 starts during the current National Hockey League campaign. The largest crowd of the local season, 13,500, attended the game.

The Rangers, who had outplayed and outscored such strong rivals as Toronto and Detroit in their two previous starts, piled up a 4-0 lead during the first two periods, despite the heavy barrage that the Bruins directed against the cool-headed Franks.

Bob Kirkpatrick opened the Rangers' scoring and after Bryant Hextall beat Goalie Frankie Brimsek twice, Lynn Patrick made it 4-0. Early in the finale, the veteran Bill Cowley ruined Franks' hopes of a shutout by blasting through him from close range.

The Bruins, who fired a total of 45 shots at Franks, including their three scoring efforts, got fully organized when Hank Goldup put the Rangers into a 5-1 lead during the seventh minute of the final period.

It took the Bruins about five minutes to get rolling and, when they did, they scored twice in 15 seconds, Murph Chamberlain slapping in from the edge of the crease and Dit Clapper golfing home a 50-footer.

Just when the Boston pressure neared its maximum, for Goldup had been sent off for tripping, Flash Hollett was penalized for a similar foul and the action was reduced to even terms for the remainder of the game.

Many of Franks' 42 stops were exceptional and he appeared at his best after the Bruins gained their third goal and threatened to pull into a tie.

THE LINEUPS

U.S., Canadian Forces Arrange Hockey Games

TORONTO, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Vern Decker, sports editor of the Globe and Mail, Tuesday in a sportspage story said the "first wartime international sports competition for representatives of American and Canadian armed forces is just around the corner."

The story said: "Marty Barry's Montreal Army entry in the Quebec Senior League will pitch hockey woo with the Baltimore Coast Guard Cutters of the Eastern States League at Baltimore on St. Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, in the first cross-border engagement for athletes in service.

"Pick Hine's classy Toronto Navy entry in the local Senior O.H.A. group has been invited to join the international sports parade. Other Canadian service teams in eastern Canada are also to be given a berth from the ambitious Baltimore Coast Guard authorities.

South Side Wins 5-4 Over E.A.C. In Midget League

Joe Morris scoring the winning goal and two others led the South Side to their third straight win in defeating the Edmonton Athletic Club 5-4 in a City Midget hockey league game played Tuesday night on the South Side home ice.

The E.A.C. opened the scoring when Jim Mann tallied midway through the first period on a pass from Grant.

The visitors went farther ahead in the second stanza when Archie Chapman scored from Jack Meldrum and the latter netted one Chapman assisting.

Joe Morris tallied with the help of Crozier near the end of this period.

The South Side tied the score with two quick goals in the last period, the first by Morris from McKenzie followed by one from McDonald on a line rush.

The E.A.C. came back to take the lead when Meldrum tallied again on a pass from Chapman.

The home team then tied the count when McCaskell drove one home unassisted and went on to win when McCaskell passed to Morris in the last minute of play.

Memorial Cup Series To Be Held in East

MONTREAL, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Allan cup finals will be in the west this season, with Memorial cup finals in the east, the central committee of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association decided Tuesday.

Lone exception to the tentative division of the senior and junior series provides for the first two Allan cup final games in the Thunder Bay district and remainder in the east should a Thunder Bay team be representing the west in the finals.

Dates for the senior finals were set for April 13, 15, 17, 19 and 21 in the best-of-five series.

The final eastern series is scheduled to open April 2 with the Quebec-Ontario winners playing on the ice of the Ottawa-Maritimes winner, the Maritimes to choose ice in Ontario or Quebec for their home games should they enter the eastern finals.

The series alternates between the two home ices April 5, 7, 9 or 10, and 12.

Manitoba meets Thunder Bay in series A of the western playdowns, with all games to be played in the Thunder Bay district March 9, 11, 13, 15 and 17.

B.C. VERSUS ALBERTA

In series "B" British Columbia plays Alberta on Alberta ice March 18, 20, 22, 25 and 27. Meanwhile, the winner of series "A" will meet Saskatchewan winner March 30, 22, 24, 27 and 29. The western finals will be staged April 1, 3, 6, 8 and 10 with location to be decided later.

The eastern junior finals start April 6 at Toronto or Ottawa, switch to Montreal or Maritimes April 8 and then alternate April 9 or 10, 12 and 14. Should a Maritime team be in the eastern finals they will choose an Ontario or Quebec ice.

The Memorial cup finals will be staged at Toronto April 17, 19, 21, 24 and 26, according to the tentative schedule.

WESTERN JUNIOR

In the west, Thunder Bay plays Manitoba at Manitoba ice March 20, 22, 24, 26 and 29, with the Alberta-Saskatchewan series to be arranged later. For the western finals, all games will be in Winnipeg unless the Edmonton Arena is available. They will be staged April 1, 3, 5, 7 and 9.

Setting of the tentative play-off dates was made at a Tuesday meeting of the central committee that replaced the usual semi-annual meeting of the C.A.H.A.

Discussion of wartime regulations, including the problem that arose out of the Q.S.H.L. ruling on former National League players were left over with Past-President George Dudley and President Frank Sargent who will confer with military authorities. The Q.S. H.L. ruling limited former N.H.L. players to four per game for any team had been expected to raise considerable discussion at the meeting.

CALDER NOTIFIED

President Sargent said that Monday's recommendation to the executive that N.H.L. teams be allowed to borrow a player from an amateur team for one game without affecting his amateur status had been communicated to President Frank Calder of the N.H.L.

Purpose of the proposed move was to assist professional clubs which had been hit by injuries and enlistments, he said, adding that the C.A.H.A. was anxious to assist the N.H.L.

The Q.A.H.A.'s request for permission for Joe Desroches of Montreal to play with Quebec Morton Aces was granted.

No. 4 I.T.S. Possesses Surplus of Hockey Talent

THAT there is no scarcity of hockey talent over at No. 4 I.T.S. is readily discernible through even a casual glance at the roster of the team.

What's more, the list could easily be confused with that of any club playing in a strictly Winnipeg league, for eight of the 10 players are from the Manitoba capital. The other two are from Alberta.

Headed by Jack McBeth, who received his hockey start with Elmwood Millionaires and later played with Harringay Greyhounds, then with Washington Eagles and last season with Glace Bay in the Maritime League, the I.T.S. squad has all the symptoms of a very potent looking sextet.

All members of the current graduating class, the boys are due for leave this week, but will return for a few days before being posted elsewhere. They are hopeful of arranging a game or so with some of the city junior clubs before breaking up.

Alan McMurdy, Ken Russell, and Harry Peelmutter have all seen service with Winnipeg Monarch, long a power in junior hockey circles in the west. Max (Tex) Simovitch played with Elmwood Millionaires, while Les Hearn, Bill Perry and John Soslak are the other Winnipeggers.

Percy Thompson the "baby" of the team was a member of the Vegreville intermediate when they won the western title. Bill MacKintosh is from McLeod.

Following is the team personnel:

Alan McMurdy, Winnipeg, forward. 1938-1940, Hamilton Elks; 1940-1941 Winnipeg Monarchs; 1941-1942 St. James Canadians. Was to go to Cleveland this year.

Ken Russell, Winnipeg, right wing. 1940-1941 Monarchs; 1941-1942 Manarchs; on Detroit Red Wings' negotiating list.

Bill Perry, Winnipeg, left wing and centre. Played with Winnipeg intermediate clubs.

Bill MacKintosh, McLeod, defence. Played junior and intermediate at McLeod and Nanton. Also did refereeing in Bralorne-Bridge River loop.

John Soslak, Winnipeg, defence. Francesca Juniors.

Harry Peelmutter, Winnipeg, right wing. With Monarchs. Also plays both rugby and soccer and boxes. With Deer Lodge and Vics when they won western junior football (rugby) titles.

Max (Tex) Simovitch, Winnipeg, defence. Elmwood Millionaires. Released to be the east seaboard chucker in Winnipeg.

McLean and Sangwin Both Beat McIntyre U.C.T. 'Spiel

WITH three more draws completed at the Royal yesterday in the United Commercial Travellers bonspiel, only this morning's remained to be finished before commencing the four knockout competitions due to begin at noon today.

Biggest upset on Tuesday was the defeat of the Lloyd McIntyre rink in two straight games. McIntyre had chalked up three in a row on the first day of the 'spiel, but Sangwin beat him 9-8 on the noon draw and then Jack McLean followed suit by administering a 11-9 set-back on the 3 o'clock.

The Snowden and Schofield rinks continued along the unbeaten path by turning in another pair of wins for a total of four, to give them the best record to date in the bonspiel.

Bert Kemp's curlers have not yet been defeated but Pat Rose's aggregation battled them to a 15-15 draw yesterday to spoil an otherwise perfect performance.

Jack McLean's pair of triumphs on Tuesday gave him four wins as against one loss. The Sangwin rink also chalked up two wins yesterday to make the count three and one.

Fowler also had two victories to give him an even break so far. Jenkins had a win and a draw.

After completion of the first draw today, the 28 rinks will be divided into four sections in accordance with their records in the five games played and the knockouts will be run off.

Following are the results of yesterday's games:

Flyers Edge Out Maple Leafs 3-2 In Midget Battle

The Stadium Flyers won their second start in the City Midget Hockey League by defeating the Maple Leafs 3-2 at the 96 street rink Tuesday night.

There was no scoring until early in the second period when King put the Maple Leafs in the lead with an unassisted effort. Merkel tallying his first counter on a pass from Anderson. Iler the count soon after. The home team came back near the end of the stanza with a goal by Wager, who received the disc from Duncan.

The Flyers tied the count when Moore scored unassisted early in the last period and went on to win as Merkel tallied on a pass from McLean in the last few minutes.

Florida Racing Sees Big Double On Opening Day

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 30.—(AP)—True Lass and Sure Fire, both ridden by Johnny Breen, came romping home in the first two races at Tropical Park Tuesday to provide a daily double payoff of $1,288.20.

The stage was set for the whopping return—which was, however, far short of the track record of more than $7,000—when Breen booted home True Lass to a nine length triumph in the six-furlong first race in one minute, 12 4-5 seconds.

The price of True Lass was $125.10 to win $43.90 to place and $20.20 to show.

Only five tickets were sold on the daily double combination of True Lass and Sure Fire, so Breen obliged by bringing in the latter to a head decision in the six-furlong second in one minute, 13 seconds.

Sure Fire was $12.90 to $2 in the win pool.

Federal Control Of CBC Is Denied

CALGARY, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Dr. J. S. Thomson, general manager of the CBC, said here yesterday in an interview that there is no government control of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. "We are responsible only to the public of Canada," he said in discussing the functions of the CBC.

Bobo Outpoints Buddy Walker in Easy 10 Rounds

COLUMBUS, O. Dec. 30.—(AP)—Harry Bobo, 207 of Pittsburgh, slugged out a 10-round decision over Jack (Buddy) Walker, 191, of Columbus, last night to win Columbus Hoisting Commission recognition as the "duration" heavyweight champion of the world.

There were no knockdowns but both battlers were cut and bleeding at the finish. Bobo, barred from fighting in his home state of Pennsylvania because of poor vision, had enough sight to aim his flicking left into Walker's face throughout.

The long lad from Pittsburgh—he's six feet four—used his height and extra weight to advantage, mauling his smaller foe around the ring. Referee Benny Cowall took the seventh round from Bobo for low punches, but the Pittsburgh battler had plenty of edge, none of the three judges giving Walker more than three of the 10 rounds.

A crowd of about 2,500 witnessed the contest.

Major Leagues Look for Guidance In Travel Problem

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, was in Washington Tuesday to confer with the office defence transportation officials.

From the conference is expected to come the first definite guidance for the major leagues, which since their formal meetings here earlier this month have been hesitant about completing plans for spring training.

On his return Commissioner Landis probably will call a joint meeting of the 16 major league club owners in Chicago for shortly after the first of the year. At that time it is likely the schedule for 1943 will be torn up, and in its place will be established a new one now in the process of preparation.

The new schedule contains the standard 154 games and the original closing date of Sept. 26, but delays opening date from April 13 to April 27. The last two weeks would be made up by scheduling additional doubleheaders, probably in the form of twilight-night twin bills.

Chicago White Sox and Chicago Cubs, complying with the O.D.T. request for curtailed spring training jaunts, Tuesday decided to train together at French Lick Springs, Ind., 278 miles south of Chicago.

Will Harridge, president of the American League said Tuesday he was certain the majority of his club owners would agree to saving two weeks from the original start of the season.

Free Area in Yugoslavia Grows as Guerilla Troops Battle 40 Axis Divisions

By SCOTT YOUNG

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP)—German and Italian propaganda foundries have made the most of reported dissension in Yugoslav guerilla ranks but perhaps they are whistling down their fears, for:

1—Approximately 40 Axis divisions are fighting constantly in Yugoslavia, but the free area is growing.

2—The Yugoslavs are producing their own arms and ammunition.

3—They have wrecked so many trains that none run at night, and day trains always are preceded by an armored train on constant guard against attack.

4—About two-thirds of the Yugoslav population gives active or passive support to the guerillas.

(A dispatch from Istanbul on Dec. 27 reported the Yugoslav guerillas had killed or captured more than 6,000 Germans, Italians, Hungarians, Bulgars and Croats recently and seized 40 tons of small arms, artillery, ammunition and explosives. It addition they dynamited two important rail lines in 11 places.)

MANY RUMORS

Absence of direct pronouncements from the Yugoslav irregulars has made rumors of internal discord—mainly over the status of General Raja Mikhailovich—difficult to define.

Yugoslav headquarters here, in constant touch with the guerilla general, say "He will remain as war minister regardless" of the composition of a new cabinet being reshuffled to "Achieve unity among various groups inside the country and to strengthen the government."

Recent information here said the two principal causes underlying political strife in Yugoslavia are:

1—The trouble is a hangover from old political cleavages between the Sergs, Montenegrins, Crotts and Slovenes which were not mended despite the establishment of an inclusive Yugoslav government. The nucleus of Gen. Mikhailovich's army is said to be Serbs, and the partisans are understood to be mainly Croats and Slovenes.

2—There is a sizeable Communist element in the army, whereas Mikhailovich is reported opposed to Communism. So far he has made no direct statement concerning ideologies but his attitude is described by Yugoslavs here as "a matter of common knowledge."

300,000 IN FIELD

Two Yugoslav guerillas arrived in London a few weeks ago after a long trip on the only line of communication operating regularly out of Yugoslavia—the underground railroad—and told of how opposition to the Axis has grown until almost 300,000 Yugoslav troops are in the field.

They told how arms and munitions factories were transported piecemeal over the mountains to Bosnia after Vuritzc, centre of partisan resistance in Serbia, was attacked by Axis forces. Everything in Vuritzce was stripped of value. Machinery was packed to the backs of donkeys and into farm carts and other primitive vehicles and taken to the Bosnia rallying-point to continue the fight.

Vital machine parts were stuffed into sacks of grain and corn and the vast scattered transport units moved in ones and twos, without guard, through Axis-controlled areas. Within a few months the machinery was re-established in a Bosnia district and production of arms and supplies for the unified partisan army was resumed.

ENGAGE MANY UNITS

This army, which made a 50-mile advance towards Zagreb during the time the British Eighth Army was routing Rommel from Egypt, is engaging 17 Italian divisions, seven Bulgarian, five German, four Hungarian and four renegade Croat. For a nation said by the Axis to be torn by strife within, it is putting up quite a fight.

Government Aid For Education Declared Vital

TORONTO, Dec. 30. — (CP) — Measures to ensure every Canadian an average standard of social and educational services were urged last night by Sqdn. Ldr. H. R. Low, on leave to the R.C.A.F. from his post as deputy-minister of education for Manitoba, in an address to the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

"There must be financial support from the government," said Sqdn. Ldr. Low, who declared that "proper education" requires financial expenditures which cannot be met by individual provinces. He urged that an Ontario ruling requiring children to attend school until 16 years of age be made applicable throughout Canada.

Chromite Found By Geologists in Bird River Area

By JACK WILLIAMS

OTTAWA, Dec. 30—(CP)—Results of the field work of the geological survey, dealing with mineral and resources, during last summer include the discovery of large bodies of chromite in the Bird River area, 85 miles northeast of Winnipeg, departmental officials said yesterday.

Tests which are still under way indicate that the ore has an unfavorable chrome-iron ratio but the discovery has attracted considerable interest and ground already has been acquired by several companies.

On Christmas Morn

Britons Trapped in Battle Fought Through Hun Lines

By WES GALLAGHER

NEAR MEDJEZ-EL-BAB, Tunisia, Dec. 26.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Seven miles behind the German lines, out of food, almost without ammunition and cut off from all means of communication, the Allied forces were being attacked continually and one of Britain's crack fighting units was given up for lost.

Shortly before midnight Christmas Eve the attack came.

"Our commander grabbed a rifle with the rest of us and we went to it," continued the Major. "The Germans tried a Winkling (bayonet) charge, but our lads stood firm and gave it to them and they fell back."

The three-hour attack ended at two o'clock Christmas morning.

With food and water gone and ammunition almost exhausted, the commander decided to withdraw. He calmly wished his officers a "Merry Christmas" then ordered them to lead the battalion in a fight through the German lines.

WITHERING FIRE

While the Germans laid down withering machine-gun fire, the exhausted unit—sleepless for three days—kept going through and around the enemy positions until the first groups stumbled into headquarters today. The wounded were carried on improvised stretchers.

The unit, which fought in France until Dunkerque and can trace its history to the battle of Gallipoli, was among the first to land at Algiers in the Allied invasion of Africa.

inviting and I take that too. A barrel comes near, but I reject that because the oil prevents me getting a grip on it. All around me men are swimming, men with blood streaking down their oil-covered faces.

The oil burns in my eyes as though someone is jabbing hot pokers into the eyes. That oil in the eyes is the worst thing. I've swallowed a bit of oil already, and it's beginning to sicken me.

Fifty feet from the ship, hardly swimming at all now, I see the bow of the Repulse swing straight into the air like a church steeple. Its under plates stand out as stark and as gruesome as the blood on the faces of the men around me. Then the lug and drag of the suction of 32,000 tons of steel sliding to the bottom hits me. Something powerful, almost irresistible, snaps at my feet. It feels as though someone were trying to pull my legs out by the hip sockets. But I am more fortunate than some others. They are closer to the ship. They are sucked back.

HUGE WAVE

When the Repulse goes down it sends over a huge wave, a wave of oil. I happen to have my mouth open and I take aboard considerable oil. That makes me terribly sick at the stomach.

As I swim in the water, other men are banging on to pieces of wood, floating lifebelts and debris. Four or five times I see blood- and oil-covered hands loosen their grips and slide beneath the surface.

I do not see Gallagher anywhere. It is difficult to recognize anyone through the oil on his face. About fifteen yards away I see someone struggling and fighting in the water. I finally recognize Sub-Lieutenant Page. There are two men near by. The injured Page is struggling to get out of the two lifebelts wrapped around him. He belts he had on when he was tossed overboard.

"I'm hurt," Page is crying. "I'm hurt. I'm no good any more. You take the belts."

Italics denote scenes and remarks which I did not actually witness or hear.)

Someone calls to me. "Are you all right, War Correspondent?"

TERRIBLY TIRED

"Yes." I say, opening my mouth to say it, and I take aboard more oil. I decide if anyone asks me any more questions I will wave my hand, if I have strength. I am terribly tired.

A small table, about three feet square floats by. I grab hold of one leg, but it is too slippery and I know I will lose it. I scramble up on top and lay there for a moment. And then I watch the Prince of Wales go down, a big, dark thing sliding into nothingness.

As I swim I hear one man yell. "An electric eel just shocked me!"

There are no sharks that I can see, although this area of the South China Sea is usually filled with sharks.

CARLEY LOST

There is a Carley float about three-quarters of a mile away, and a destroyer about two miles distant. I have no intention of trying to reach them. I only want to rest on top of the small table. The conviction that this is my finish is still strong within me. Besides, I want to conserve my strength, and jealously to guard it during the hours before death comes.

I say to myself, "I've gotta remember all this; I gotta remember all this." And the next minute, "What the hell's the use? I will never be able to report this story."

It's so easy to close your eyes, shut out this sight, and tiredly forget what the eyes already have seen.

Strangely enough, I don't think of my wife, my family or my childhood. I constantly glance around to see if I recognize any of the men, and I am especially watching for Gallagher. I don't see him but I do recognize two or three officers and we smile wanly at each other.

FIVE POUNDS LIGHTER

As I lie on the table I pull off my heavy cotton khaki socks. They are soaked and weighted by oil, as heavy as iron. I let the soaked socks slip into the water and feel five pounds lighter. As the warmth of the South China Sea slushes

Nazi Captives Found Hiding In Old Camp

CALGARY, Dec. 30—(CP)—Four German prisoners of war, about which there were conflicting rumors of their being missing after completion of a mass transfer of prisoners from one Alberta camp to another five weeks ago, are back in custody.

They had never left the first camp, they explained, all non-commissioned officers of the German army, had burrowed their way underground where they were found by a detail of the Veteran Guard of Canada.

WELL SUPPLIED

All were freshly shaved and apparently well nourished. Adequate stores of provisions, blankets and mattresses were found in the dugout which had been constructed alongside one of the sump pits in the big camp.

The guards had been on the job since the transfer was made and searched the old camp foot-by-foot during the past five weeks.

Monday, in charge of the camp, they came upon a sump pit, the sides of which were boarded. It was a false wall, about three feet in height and separated the sump pit from a little tunnel about four feet long which opened into the dugout.

In this dugout the four prisoners were discovered. At the command they emerged from the tunnel one by one, blinking as they did so at the bright sunlight. They submitted meekly to the guards.

Yankees Lose Ruffing to Army

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30.—(AP)—New York Yankees lost their star pitcher Tuesday to a bigger Yankee crew—the army.

Charles (Red) Ruffing, mound mainstay of the oft-times champion Yanks, entered the army after a medical examination, and goes in for non-combatant duty.

A coal mine accident in Nokomis, Ill., when he was only 15 kept Ruffing from a 1-A classification. He lost four toes in the mishap, but went on to become one of the game's great hurlers.

Last fall he pitched for the Navy in the major leagues, 13 of them with the Yanks.

A right knee injury formerly kept him out of the army. Mr. Parker will return to Olds where he formerly taught for three years. While there he was prominent in school and festival enterprises.

CLIVE—At a party for 16 guests, Mrs. W. Murdoch entertained 14 who had come home for the Christmas holidays. . . . Soloist at the annual Christmas party was Mrs. J. Hill. . . . Home for the holidays are Miss H. Harrow and Miss M. Steadman, both of the Peace River district; Miss D. Allison, Jasper; Miss M. McCormack, Calgary. Miss V. Steadman, Jack Northcott and Miss V. Cast Doesn't Stop Don Grosso

DETROIT, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Centre Don Grosso of Detroit Red Wings has a cast on his hand with his left wrist in a cast, it was disclosed Tuesday, and now that his secret is out he expects to be back in the lineup. His team's next National Hockey League game is Thursday night against the Rangers at New York.

Grosso reluctantly admitted yesterday that he suffered a bone separation at the spot of an earlier wrist fracture in a collision Nov. 14 with Paul Meger of Montreal Canadiens. After X-ray examination doctors put his wrist in a cast, and the hockey player believed ers wear kept his secret well. The cast stays on three more weeks.

K. OF C. HUT DOES ROARING TRADE

A check-up on the first anniversary of the opening of the Knights of Columbus hut here showed that 8,165 service men have been entertained at dances, 23,836 at concerts and 57,087 at picture shows. At least 150,000 men and women have used the facilities of the hut.

During this period 2,600 magazines have been circulated and 90 000 sheets of note paper and envelopes have been distributed. Services of the hut are enjoyed by men and the girls of the C.A.S.C. Training Centre here as well as airmen from No. 36 S.F.T.S., R.A.F. Penhold. Supervisor of the hut is J. R. Davidson.

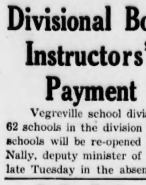
Sixty-Two Schools to Reopen on January 4

Settlement Is Reached in Vegreville Teachers' Strike

Divisional Board Grants Instructors' Request for Payment of Living Bonus

Vegreville school division teachers' strike which closed 62 schools in the division Nov. 10 was settled Tuesday and schools will be re-opened Monday, Jan. 4, Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education for Alberta, announced late Tuesday in the absence of Premier William Aberhart, minister of education.

Strike Ends



Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education, who announces that the Vegreville school division teachers' salary strike has been settled. Schools will re-open Monday, Jan. 4.

The settlement was reached when the divisional school board agreed to the teachers' proposal that they be paid a cost-of-living bonus of 7½ per cent.

The agreement on which teachers return to their classrooms provides for a total salary payment of $63,830 for the 62 teachers for the 10-month teaching period ending in June 1943, plus a cost-of-living bonus of 7½ per cent. From this total is deducted the loss in salary resulting from the closing of the schools during the six week strike.

NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations for the settlement of the strike were undertaken when schools closed Nov. 10, with Premier William Aberhart, minister of education, and Dr. McNally holding a series of conferences with school trustee and teachers' representatives.

The strike occurred when the school board refused to accept the salary payment recommended in the majority report of a board of arbitration. Salary payments recommended in this report totalled approximately $76,000.

The board offered to accept the arbitration board's minority report, which provided for a total salary payment of $69,830. In addition to this, the board was also prepared to pay a cost-of-living bonus of 5%.

Teachers, however, rejected this proposal and requested a cost-of-living bonus of 7½.

On Tuesday the school board agreed to this bonus payment on the basis of the arbitration board's minority report award of a total salary payment of $69,830, less an amount for time lost through the closing of schools.

PLAN ENDS DISPUTE

Acceptance of this plan by both trustees and teachers ended the strike.

F. G. Austin, chairman of the Vegreville school division board, participated in negotiations along with representatives of the Alberta Teachers' Association.

Approximately 1,500 students were affected by the strike, which however, did not affect Vegreville town schools.

THE QUESTION

Does the holding of an annual boys' parliament serve any useful purpose?

THE ANSWERS

ALFRED FARMILO, president, Alberta Federation of Labor: I consider that the boys' parliament held annually is one of the most potent educational factors in our community life. It contributes to the spiritual, secular and social education of our young people.

A. LITWINOW, salesman: Undoubtedly the boys' parliament is a most useful educational weapon which should have the utmost support from the general public.

FRED JENNINGS, carpenter: It has been my regret that such a parliament was not in vogue when I was a youngster. I have attended many of the sessions of the parliament here and consider it one of the really worthwhile undertakings designed to establish self reliance in our youth.

Something a trifle out of the ordinary, we think, appeared in the latest issue of the Whitehorse Star, that peppery little weekly, published away up in the Yukon by Horace Moore. Quite a few years ago Horace recalled the advice of another Horace and went northwest instead of just plain west.

In the last issue of the Star is a paid advertisement, which we think is probably the first of its kind to appear in any newspaper, anywhere. It is an ad inserted by Brig. Gen. J. A. O'Connor, officer commanding the Northwest Service Command of the United States army, with headquarters at Whitehorse.

The general thanks all of the officers and men who worked on the great Alaska highway construction job and who are still working on the road. The general expresses his thanks to all the troops under his command, along with warmest seasonal greetings. Without the

Miners' Shortage Is Greatly Eased

Shortage of coal miners throughout Alberta has been greatly alleviated although the number now at work is not normal, Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines said Wednesday.

In all about 100 experienced miners have been placed in mines while 181 limited-experienced miners have received provisional certificates.

Edmonton production of coal is sufficient to meet urgent local calls, it is reported by some coal dealers, while others state that there has been little, if any improvement, during the past month.

Some country points, namely Two Hills, Radisson, Sask.; Vegreville, Wetaskiwin, Peace River, Myrnam and St. Paul are urgent, in need of coal, it was reported.

First Canadian Glider Pilot Home in Edmonton on Leave

When the avenging armies of the United Nations launch the "Sunday Punch" at Hitler's Europe it is likely that many of the invading troops will come down from the skies like avenging angels. There's more than a hint these days that many of the Allied soldiers will make the trip from Britain to Germany by glider plane.

He is Flying Officer L. B. Wyman whose home is at 11524 91 street. Born in the Peace River district FO. Wyman attended Eastwood High School here and starred at rugby and basketball before joining the R.C.A.F. here in February of 1941.

FERRY PILOT

After graduating as a pilot, FO. Wyman served for a time with the R.A.F. Atlantic Ferry Command and piloted many of the huge bombers that are blasting Axis cities to rubble, from Canada to Britain.

Some time ago he was selected for transport glider training. He toured England and Scotland and studied the many types of transport gliders. Then he was sent to the United States where his studies continued. He proudly wears the silver wing of the United States Army glider pilot. In addition he wears the R.C.A.F. pilot's wing.

FO. L. B. WYMAN

FO. Wyman is enthusiastic about gliders and what they will accomplish in winning the war, but he is unable to say much about these gliders in a why, where and when sense right now.

"Everything about our training and the gliders I've seen is hush-hush at the present time," FO. Wyman said in an interview. "You understand why that is so," he added.

TO TRAIN CANUCKS

More Canadians will be trained in the operation of gliders though, and the machines will likely be used for transporting both troops and supplies to many battle fronts, the officer said.

That the glider transport will come into its own after the war, is the firm conviction of FO. Wyman. He thinks huge gliders, carrying both passengers and freight will be towed behind motor-powered planes on air lines all over the world. They can be built cheaply, will carry great loads, and are very safe.

"You can land them anywhere," FO. Wyman said.

Here's how he sees the post-war situation as to gliders:

"After the war there will be thousands of high-powered planes, constructed for bombing only. These will be ideal for towing transport gliders. Most bombing planes are useful only for carrying bombs. It would cost a lot to change them into transports. But they will be able to tow several gliders."

Gliding is quite pleasant, the Edmonton officer said.

SILENCE STRANGE

"It is strange to be without the noise after living at a bomber. None of the bomber becomes monotonous and the glider is really a pleasant change," he said.

In England he met George Kronfielst, European gliding ace, now serving the allied cause as an expert instructor on glider construction and operation.

Residents Are Preparing To Welcome New Year In Traditional Fashion

One hundred thousand Edmontonians are looking forward to participating in traditional celebrations at midnight, Thursday, marking the close of another year. For several reasons the event is anticipated this year with more optimism than was the event one year ago.

The year 1942 is being termed on all sides as the brightest of the three war years. Turns of events in the World War in the last two months give all occasion to believe that an even brighter 1943 is in store for Edmontonians as it is for all occupants of the Allied nations.

Reminiscing through the events of the last year, Edmontonians unhesitatingly point to the stubborn resistance of the Russian armies, climaxed by the defence of Stalingrad, as one prime reason for having the occasion, and opportunity, to look forward towards celebrating the coming of the New Year in traditional style.

The invasion of North Africa on the heels of the success of the "Rout of Rommel" by Montgomery's served as a happy climax to a year of stubborn resistance by the Russians.

These geographically distant events will doubtless be "toasted" in thousands of Edmonton homes, as their successes have had a direct bearing upon life here.

RESOLUTIONS

It is expected that "war resolutions" such as "I'll buy more bonds and savings stamps," "I'll do everything possible to speed up victory" or "I'll keep the home front producing" will be definitely in the forefront among resolutions of young and old alike.

Hundreds of homes where the pinch of financial worries stood as a hindrance to a "night of fun" for many years previous are looking forward to "going all out" Thursday night, now that prosperity through war activities has returned.

QUIET THOUGHT

Hundreds of other homes will choose to spend the last moments of 1942 and the first moments of City commissioners announced Wednesday that they had granted an extension of service for Inspector J. J. Shaw, of the city police department, until Jan. 30, 1943.

Mary Komish, or Daniels, was remanded Wednesday for trial in supreme court on a charge of theft of $25 from "a companion." Preliminary hearing of the case was held before Magistrate Millar in police court Wednesday.

Harry Zimmerman, North Edmonton, who pleaded guilty in supreme court Tuesday on an assault charge, was sentenced Wednesday morning by Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor to serve three years in Prince Albert penitentiary.

In place of the regular weekly luncheon meeting Thursday members of the Edmonton Optimist Club, their wives and friends, will participate in New Year's Eve celebrations at the Tuck Shop, Garneau, Thursday night. They will resume their regular weekly luncheon meetings Jan. 7.

Setting aside of Tuesday and Friday evenings for interviewing of applicants to the women's division of the R.C.A.F. is proving highly popular, it was learned Wednesday. Offices remain open on each of those evenings until 9 p.m., and a full staff is on duty in the Provincial building for reviewing applications.

Provincial government offices will close at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, New Year's Eve, and will remain closed until Monday, Jan. 4, it was announced Wednesday by Hon. E. C. Manning, minister of trade and industry and acting premier in the absence of Premier William Aberhart. Saturday, Jan. 2, will be observed as a holiday by the civil service.

First meeting of the New Year of the Alberta Pensioners' Society, Incorporated, will be held at the I.O. O.F. hall, 103 street, at 8 p.m. Monday. T. A. Shandro, of the editorial department of The Edmonton Bulletin, will be guest speaker, dealing with "Security in Reverse." Edward C. Fisher, society president, will be in the chair.

Diwan Bahadur S. E. Rungnadhan, advisor to the secretary of state for India, will be guest speaker at a luncheon of the Edmonton branch of the Men's Canadian Club at the Macdonald hotel at 12:30 p.m. Monday. Topic of his address will be "The Political Situation in India." Mr. Rungnadhan was a member of the Indian Educational Service for 25 years, and was a delegate to the Congress of the Universities of the Empire in London in 1932. W. A. MacDonald, president of the Edmonton branch, will be in the chair.

Women may now be enlisted in the women's division of the R.C.A.F. as tailoresses, it was announced at No. 3 Recruiting Centre Wednesday. Applicants must have had experience with sewing machines and attachments, hand sewing, and be able to do pressing and cleaning. They should also be capable of identifying standard textiles.

Edmonton Member Sends Greetings

"If we refuse to let disagreements and differences divide us, we will make more progress in the New Year toward victory in the war and peace" Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, Liberal M.P. for Edmonton East, stated in a New Year's message to The Bulletin and its readers.

Text of the message reads: "to The Bulletin and its readers, I send my fervent wishes for a 1943 full of promise for marked progress. We have had a year of stress and strain. 1942 will most likely try stamina and courage just as much."

"But if we refuse to let disagreements and differences divide us we will make real progress toward victory and peace in the war and individually and nationally may we have a Happy New Year."

Overseas Soldiers Now at Garrison

Ten N.C.O.'s and men, who have been serving overseas with the Canadian Army, arrived back in Edmonton Wednesday morning. Seven are sergeants who have returned to study for commissions, while the remaining three are casualties.

Most of those returning had served with the Edmonton Regiment.

The sergeants are: R. W. Hayter, Edmonton Regiment, of Vegreville; G. E. Mitchell of the 3rd Field Bty., R.C.A., of Edmonton; R. K. Coleman, Edmonton Regiment, Edmonton; J. L. Harmon, Edmonton Regiment, Camrose; J. Arthurl, Edmonton Regiment, Edmonton; J. C. Pade, Edmonton Regiment, Edmonton and W. M. Parker, 2nd Armored Regiment, Edmonton.

Casualties, whose rank was not immediately obtained, are: J. F. Forcade, Edmonton; W. Tizzard, Malakj, and A. G. Glover, Edmonton.

The returning troops were given immediate leave, after reporting to the Edmonton wing of No. 13 district depot, which is under the temporary command of Capt. E. W. Kelly.

Another interesting department of service now open to alert young women is that of code and cypher reading. Young women between 19 and 30 are eligible and must possess junior matriculation.

Edmonton squadrons of the Air Cadets of Canada will parade at the Normal School buildings on Monday and Wednesday of next week at 7:15 p.m. It is essential that all cadets attend both parades.

Prominent in athletics, for which he won several medals, Tony Korble, teacher at Two Hills school division, near Derwent, has joined the R.C.A.F. He now has a brother in the R.C.A.F., Neil M. Whillans of Tofield, is the second of the family to join the service. He has a brother now serving in the army. Norman A. Reid, of Wildewater, is another R.C.A.F. recruit, who also has a brother in the army.

Resume Work If Salaries Agreed Upon

Teachers of the Vegreville school division are prepared to return to their classes next week provided that the Vegreville divisional board agrees, in the mean time, to the salary proposal submitted to them for consideration by Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education, who is acting as mediator in the strike dispute.

This is the text of a resolution passed at noon Wednesday by the provincial executive of the Alberta Teachers' Association at their regular Christmas holiday meeting. Representatives of the Vegreville A.T.A. local are present at the meeting, which has been devoted primarily to the Vegreville salary dispute.

A member of the A.T.A. executive stated that the teachers have agreed to the salary proposal as presented to Dr. McNally, but pointed out further that there will be no returning to the classrooms on Jan. 4, unless the Vegreville board agrees to the proposal before that time.

The A.T.A. executive pointed out that the Vegreville teachers require this assurance before they will resume class work.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Bride Should Blow About Good Points

She Needs a Horn to Tell Husband What a Bargain He's Got; It's Human for Man to Ignore Attributes

If I were going to give a bride a wedding present that would really be of some use to her, I would send her a trumpet with the admonition: Blow your own horn. For undoubtedly the mistake that the great majority of married women make is not knowing that they have to be their own press agents, and that unless they ballyhoo their virtues their husbands seldom perceive them.

Indisputably the proof of a woman's success as a wife consists in keeping her husband thinking that he is a grand little picker, and that he is married to the most wonderful woman in the world. Indeed, for a man to go about bragging about his wife and telling about what a marvelous manager she is, what a good cook, and how far she can stretch a dollar, is a certificate of domestic happiness that you could draw money on at the bank. But don't delude yourself into thinking that he found out all these marvels himself. No, never. She told him so.

Not so long ago at a dinner party that I attended a woman said in a voice that could not fail to reach the ears of her husband across the table: "Yesterday my cook was cross because my husband was late for dinner, and I told her, once for all, that my husband is the head of this house, and that it is run to suit his pleasure and convenience. And I further told her that I felt it was my privilege, as well as my business, to cater to all of his tastes and habits and do everything possible to please him."

SWELLED UP WITH PRIDE

Whereupon the husband swelled out his chest and looked like the cat that had swallowed the canary, while all the other husbands at the table put on an injured look that said as plainly as words that they felt that they had gotten stung in their matrimonial bargains.

Yet there wasn't a single other wife at the table who was not a good cook and manager, and who didn't run her house to suit her husband and do everything possible to make him happy. Every wife of them ate roast beef instead of fancy dishes because their husbands liked plain cooking. They bought hats that suited their husbands' tastes, not theirs, and went to jazz sessions instead of symphony concerts because their husbands preferred Anheuser to Taunhauser. But not one of them got a pat on their heads for their sacrifices, to say nothing of having their husbands crown them with laurel wreaths, because they didn't tell their husbands what model wives they were.

Now there is no use in blaming husbands for taking their wives for granted and not perceiving what treasures they possess. It is just human nature. Most of us have to have our blessings pointed out to us before we ever see them, and that is why wives need to blow their own horns if they want to be appreciated.

Most husbands take their wives at their own violation. If Maria tells her John when he comes home at night about how hard she has worked all day, he congratulates himself upon having gotten an industrious wife. If she tells him how she has walked six blocks to save ten cents on the groceries, he gets to believing that she is a financial wonder. And if, in addition, she keeps ever before him that she does all this for love of him, she holds up in his mind a picture of devotion that makes him wonder what he ever did to get such a paragon.

SELF-CONDEMNATION

But if a wife is foolish enough to tell her husband of all her faults and call his attention to all her blunders and mistakes; if she apologizes for the bills being too big, or the roast being burned, he comes to regard her as a failure as a wife, and pities himself accordingly.

Hence the wise wife gets out the brass band and celebrates her triumphs and soft-pedals her failures. She calls his attention to her good qualities and camouflages her bad ones. She parades her good behaviors and hides her misfits in the back of the closet. She doesn't wait for her husband to discover what a marvelous wife he has gotten. She never lets him forget it. She doesn't permit him to take her wifely devotion for granted. Her theme song is: "Darling, I do all of this for YOU."

So it is because every wife writes her own price tag for her husband that I would like to give every young bride a trumpet and tell her to blow her own horn.

Debunker

Contrary to popular notion, country dogs are not any more healthy than their city cousins, says Dr. James R. Kinney, in his book, "How to Raise a Dog." The reason is not that country dogs are often allowed to roam about to seek their own food, while city dogs are fed more regularly and a better diet Dr. Kinney also says that there is nothing in the idea that raw meat makes a dog more vicious; that different breeds of dogs require different foods; that some dogs are naturally vicious and others naturally affectionate or fickle; that females are more intelligent than males; or that the temperature of a dog's nose is an indication of his health. This is all dog nonsense.

What To Do

Is it ever proper to invite someone to a party whom you have met only once at a public function?

Answer: First invitations should not be issued until you have call on the person in question or they have called on you.

However, when an elderly woman invites a young girl to her home, naturally no "duty" call is necessary.

Lately, this custom has been gotten around by sending one's card with the invitation and in this way dispensing with the "duty" call.

First calls may never be ignored. In other words, if you have met someone, and they call on you, you must return the call and leave your card.

Those fortunate individuals who are of strong body build of positive and dynamic personality, and who have had a day's illness in their lives, are apt to scorn, to derision, any mention of mind cure. These people are thoroughly convinced it is not possible to cure bodily ailments by mental application, although all the practical demonstrations of science unhesitatingly appreciate the part the mind plays in bringing about a return to normal health and strength to those who are afflicted.

Many a remedy has been jokingly referred to as one which will kill or cure, and the same can be said about the mind. For example, when a native of New Zealand, the Maori, decides that he is going to die, he just turns his face to the wall and within a short time he is dead. This happens regardless of the ministrations of the white doctor, of the noisy incantations of the native chief or healer. I have seen many cases in hospitals which were given up as hopeless and relatives were advised that it was only a matter of time and the patient would die. The fact had been overlooked however, that the patient had the will to live, and recovered from what seemed to be certain death.

In our everyday life mental influences interfere in a very definite way with bodily functions. We have all experienced the stomach upsets which follow mental stress, emotional upsets, worry or anxiety during a meal time. We have all noticed a physical depression which always follows disappointment and we realize too that many a man has been ruined by watching the ticker tape in the stock broker's office as it unwinds the news of a falling market.

Many great doctors say that fifty per cent of the cure of a patient depends upon the confidence he had in the doctor treating him. Many a patient suffering from functional or organic disease will experience a sense of relief and will feel better after a visit from the doctor, whether he gave any treatment or not. The mental reassurance which the doctor transmits to his patient causes him to expect recovery and the mind is positively established toward the will to get well.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Rubber—None vul.

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening—♦ 9. 30

Mrs. Rockwell played this hand in typical Marine style, driving right through to her contract. Despite the opening lead, which was clearly a short lead, Mrs. Rockwell (South) immediately cashed the four diamonds in order to discard her two hearts. West ruffed the last diamond and led the heart ace, which Mrs. Rockwell ruffed. The king and ace of clubs were cashed and then a club ruff established the suit. Dummy led a spade, East played low and Mrs. Rockwell put in the king, reasoning that if West had both major aces, he probably would have overcalled one club. A second trump round knocked out the queen and set together, and Mrs. Rockwell claimed the rest.

BABY FOOD FOR FIDO

Rumor is that Washington officials are pretty sore at a number of dog lovers who are feeding hard-to-get baby food to their pets. The nutrient value of food prepared for infants is high—and feeding such food to Fido is both wasteful and unpatriotic.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Every step a child takes toward independence from the parent is apt to be a painful one. Children feel secure in familiar situations and doing familiar things and when we attempt to wean them from them they rebel. The "only" child who spends all of every day with a loving and protective parent is most unwilling to get along without her.

Mrs. H. L. G. describes her eight-months-old baby as healthy and a good eater and sleeper. "He weighs 19 pounds but despite his good health never seems to be happy unless I am with him.

"I was determined not to have a spoiled child and I am not sure that he is. For, occasionally, one of his toys will occupy him for quite a while. But, ordinarily, he seems to lose interest quickly.

"If I leave him to go into another room he begins to cry. Sometimes when I am with him he pays no attention to me, but he knows the minute I leave.

"Perhaps his toys aren't of the type that amuses him. Could you suggest something suitable? He is a smart little baby and can be as happy and gay as anyone."

If from birth a baby's bed had always a bright, pink blanket on it, bed would not seem to be bed without it. He has always had you, like a pink blanket, making all the activities of his day familiar and secure. Without you he is lost.

But he must begin to get used to situations of which you are not a part. That is his first lesson in independence. He must discover that he can be happy when you are absent. He can only discover this by experience.

Before you leave the room change the baby's position or give him a new toy to engage his attention. Make frequent trips in and out but do not pretend to notice his crying or make any attempt to sooth it.

What baby will discover is that regardless of whether he cries you will come back and once he accepts this you can make your absences longer and longer as he will not be apt to fuss until you do return.

It's well to get him used to the services of persons in the home—such as Daddy—or persons who come into the home. Just be changed or fed or put down for his nap by some other person convinces the baby that he can be happy and well-cared for even if you are not present. That's the first step in his independence from you.

Our leaflet, "Teaching Independence" may be had by sending a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

BURN OILY RAGS

Don't store oily rags—burn them. Such cloths are primed for spontaneous combustion. Carelessness causes accidents and last year, through fires alone, destroyed $90,000,000 worth of property. If you have oily chamois polishing cloths store them in a covered glass jar when not in use.

Try This Bean Loaf For Meatless Days

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

BEAN LOAF

(Serves 6-8)

One cup uncooked navy beans or 2 cups boiled navy beans, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 small onion, diced, 3 tbs. cooking fat, 1 egg, 1½ tsp. salt, 1 cup evaporated milk.

Mash cooked beans. Add other ingredients in the order listed and stir until well blended. Turn into a well-greased 2-quart baking dish. Shape into a loaf. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 45 minutes.

BEEF STEW WITH DUMPLINGS

(Serves 6-8)

One pound chuck beef, 4 lbs. flour, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, 6 small onions, sliced thin, 3 carrots, sliced, 3 turnips, quartered, 4 potatoes, quartered.

Cut meat into cubes about 1 inch thick. Mix the flour, salt and pepper. Roll meat in the flour mixture. Fry some of the fat from the meat in a frying pan. Brown meat in the hot fat, stirring constantly to prevent burning. Transfer to a stew kettle and cover with boiling water. Simmer for 1½ hours. Add vegetables and continue cooking for 1 hour or until done. Put in the dumplings 12 minutes before serving.

Tomorrow's Menu

LAST TRAIN FROM BERLIN

How Long Can Germany Last? This Book, Soon to Be Presented to Bulletin Readers, Tells You by Laying Bare the Havoc the Russian War Has Wrought Upon the German Home Front

How long can Germany hold off Russia?

The other concerns what has taken place on the German home front. "Last Train from Berlin" gives that—with such completeness of telling detail, with such accuracy of observation and with such insight into the significance of events that within ten days of its publication the book became a national best-seller and ever since has remained one.

The book is an amazing and solidly encouraging record of what the Russian war did to the inside of Germany, to the body of the nation.

Capt. Hunter N. S. Lister Wed Overseas

Two former Edmontonians, both serving overseas with the armed forces, were married in England Wednesday. They are Capt. Watson Hunter, son of Mrs. Robert Hunter of the Algonquin Apts, and Nursing Sister Margaret Lister, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Murray Lister, now of Vancouver, but formerly of Edmonton, where Mr. Lister was in the banking business.

Capt Hunter is on the headquarters staff of the First Canadian Army Tank Brigade. He went overseas in June, 1941, with an armored unit as a lieutenant and was later promoted to captain. He graduated from the University of Alberta in law and arts. He is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Nursing Sister Lister is attached to the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps overseas. She is a graduate of the University of Toronto, and was trained at the Royal Victoria hospital, Montreal.

Women of Moose Install Officers At Recent Meet

Mrs. B. Smith was installed as secretary-treasurer as a recent meeting of the Women of the Moose. Mrs. A. Rennie was made graduate regent, following the resignation of Mrs. M. Green, former treasurer.

Servicewomen From Canada Are Welcome

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Britain, it can be said most definitely, is glad to receive young men and women and none have been so welcome, nor so grateful for the hospitality offered, as the girls of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division).

"The English people welcome us into their houses and take us into their hearts," said LAW. Pat Tofflemire of Windsor, Ont.

This also was the opinion of AW. Eileen Hassett of (224 West 15th St.) Vancouver.

They live with an English family, have meals with them and have been made to feel "quite like one of the family."

Section Officer Pat Griffin of Winnipeg had this to add: "We've only to stand at a street corner looking bewildered and some person will immediately come up and ask if they can help."

VISIT RELATIVES

While on leave or on a "48" as they call week-end leaves, the girls visit English relatives or people whose addresses they have been given by friends, or friends' friends back in Canada.

The Lady Francis Ryder club takes an interest in the girls and makes suggestions as to where they can stay during leave periods. At the club's suggestion two girls spent a week-end at a farm in the country and they were still full of the good, lazy time they had there when I visited headquarters.

They spent their week-end evenings roasting chestnuts before the open fire and had their first taste of them.

Normal School Gymnasium Scene of I.T.S. Graduation

Normal School Gymnasium of No. 4 I.T.S. was the scene of a graduation party when No. 4 Squadron, Course 65, on Tuesday, enjoyed an evening of dancing followed by supper in the cafeteria. The entertainment was held by kind permission of Wing Commander J. A. Hutchison, commanding officer of the station.

Miss M. Mair, J. Clements Are Married

The Rev. J. MacBeath Miller solemnized the marriage on Saturday, at First Presbyterian church, when Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Mair of Edmonton, became the bride of Writer James R. Clements, R.C.N.W.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clements, also of Edmonton.

For her wedding the bride wore a floor-length dressmaker suit, with a tiny maroon velvet hat and other accessories in black. Her corsage was formed of white gardenias.

Attending the bride was Miss Margaret McLachlin. She wore a two-piece suit, of an old rose shade. Her accessories were of black, and a shoulder corsage of pink delight roses was pinned at her shoulder.

Best man was LAC. Donald Arnell, R.C.A.F., and ushering the guests to their places were OS. Kenneth Jennings nd AB. R. Gurr.

Chenier-Morin Nuptials Held At City Church

The Rev. Father V. Gaudet solemnized the marriage early Tuesday morning, of Rollande (Hollie) Morin, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Firmin Morin of Edmonton, to Lt. Bernard Chenier, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Chenier of Regina, Sask. For the occasion, St. Joachim's church was bright with Christmas flowers in tones of pink and deep red.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal wedding gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a long torso bodice, featuring sparkling, long tapering sleeves, and full gathered skirt. Her veil of white embroidered net reached the hem of her skirt, and was caught to her curls by a satin halo arrangement, trimmed with white lace. Matching lace was also used to trim the sleeves and front of the bodice.

Her only piece of jewelry was a gold locket, gift from the groom, and she carried an arm bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Mrs. C. Morin, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Rose Perfontaine, attended as matron-of-honor and bridesmaid respectively. Mrs. Morin chose a floor-length gown of yellow sheer, featuring draped bodice, sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves and a full gathered skirt. A dainty beret of matching gathered net formed her hat, and her flowers were Talisman roses, en corsage.

Mrs. Perfontaine wore a slipper-length frock of turquoise blue taffeta, styled with a sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves, and flounced skirt. Her head dress was similar to that of the matron-of-honor's, and she wore a corsage of pink delight roses pinned to her shoulder. A tiny gold cross completed her ensemble.

Best man was Leonard Lefebvre, nephew to the bride, and ushering the guests to their places was Cpl. C. Morin, R.C.A., brother of the bride.

Wedding music was played by G. Pepin.

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served to 50 guests at the home of the bride's parents. The rooms were festive with Christmas decorations, and centring the bride's table was a three-tiered wedding cake. A wedding supper for immediate relatives was held at the Royal George hotel later in the evening. Nearly 50 guests were present.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Morin chose to wear a street-length ensemble of royal blue silk jersey, featuring black braid trimming on the bodice, bracelet-length sleeves, and a corsage of white carnations. Her accessories were in black.

The couple will take a wedding trip to Regina early in the New Year, where they will visit the bridegroom's parents, before taking up residence in Saskatoon.

TO VICTORY

Fashion adds its strength to that of patriotism, as the nation's department stores start distributing to women the new Victory Shoulder Sack which the Office of Defense Transportation expects will encourage shoppers to "Walk and Carry" more than ever before. The sack, of heavy paper suspended from a strong shoulder cord, is guaranteed to carry 25 pounds. Above, it is photographed in one of Fifth Avenue's smartest specialty shops, which sponsors it as a "fashion must" for the duration.

Women Play Great Part In Airways

MONTREAL, Dec. 30 —(CP)— Air-minded women have taken over much of the work of maintaining the skyways of Canada — and they are going to take over even more, it has been predicted.

"With the progress of the war, the company has found it increasingly difficult to obtain new personnel and a training school now is being established for women graduates of commercially-operated radio colleges," he said. "The R.C.A. course will cover a period of four or three months and the women operators will be assigned to major stations to work under supervision."

Many of the new employees in shops and hangars are women, replacing men who have been granted leave of absence to go into military service, said Mr. Symington, adding that they have "proven themselves very proficient in the exacting tasks demanded of them."

During the year, many women were trained in the company's schools to become stewardesses and to take places in the traffic and passenger service offices throughout the Dominion.

Future Soldier Should Secure An Education

By RUTH MILLETT

Every time a kid who has managed to stretch his age and enlist in one of the services is found out and shipped home to his family, attention is focused on one of the big problems that parents of 15, 16 and 17-year-old boys face today.

Seeing the older boys go off to war and knowing that, if the war lasts very long, they will be in it themselves, makes many younger boys restless, bored with their school work, annoyed at being treated like children.

The ones who get to feeling that way stay away from school or dream through classes, rebel at home authority, and wait impatiently for the day when they will be old enough to put on a uniform.

It is beginning to look as if the one thing that could be done to prevent boys from wasting the precious years that are left to them is to dramatize for them the part that education plays in modern warfare. If these kids could be shown how what they are learning today will contribute directly to what kind of

80 Members Civic Opera Hold Dance

Eighty members and guests of the Edmonton Civic Opera Society gathered in Masonic Temple on Tuesday evening, to celebrate the Christmas season with a dance. Several New Zealand airmen stationed in Edmonton were special guests. Although the party was strictly informal, A. I. Mathew, president of the society, acted as chairman.

Colored screen pictures of past operas presented by the society in Edmonton were shown by E. H. McDonall. Such presentations as "Naughty Marietta", "The Vagabond King" and "The Chocolate Soldier" were shown to fellow-guests and players re-lived their parts. Individual characters from the pictures were shown, and the costumes of the recent snowstorm in Edmonton were also presented by Mr. McDonall.

Mr. Mathew read a letter from George Steer, chairman of the Navy League of Canada, northern Alberta branch, in thanks for the sum of $500 donated by the Edmonton Civic Opera Society.

Arrangements for the event were made by Mrs. Marie Adkisson.

Miss M. Fadzean, Dr. Fowler Wed at All Saints' Cathedral

Cedar boughs, carnations and poinsettias were arranged in true Christmas style at All Saints' Cathedral on Tuesday evening, when Margaret McFadzean of Edmonton, sister of George McFadzean of Toronto, became the bride of Dr. J. R. Fowler, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Fowler of Ponoka. The Rev. Canon A. M. Trendell officiated.

The bride is a graduate of the University Hospital School of Nursing, class 1940, and since then has been a member of the nursing staff of the hospital.

Dr. Fowler, who is an only grandson of Robert H. Marsh, Sussex long, was graduated from the University of Alberta in Medicine, convocation 1942. Since then he has been interning at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria.

The bride chose a formal gown of chalk white sheer, styled with bishop sleeves, and fitted waist. Her floor-length veil was held in place by a wreath of white roses, and she carried a bouquet of the same flowers in shades of vivid red.

Mrs. P. Hall was matron-of-honor. She wore a slipper-length gown of shell pink crepe-taffeta, and white elbow length gloves to match. A cluster of mums was placed in her hair.

Dr. A. J.K. Elliott was best man, and ushering the guests to their places were Dr. I. G. Craig and Capt. G. D. McDonald.

A reception was held at the Macdonald hotel immediately following. Mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Fowler, received with the bridal couple. She was smart in a frock of black crepe, with white lame jacket to contrast, and corsage of white carnations.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Fowler, of Ponoka; Miss D. Chappell of Victoria; Mrs. B. Coleman, Kimberley, B.C.; Dr. and Mrs. G. A. McLaren of Regina; Mrs. James McFadzean, aunt of the bride, of Lamburn; Miss Hilda Sodeman, Red Deer; Mr. and Mrs. P. Holt, Lethbridge; and Mr. and Mrs. George McFadzean, Tofield.

Ease Coughing, Loosen Up Phlegm This Home-Tested Way

Relief from Distress of Colds Starts at Once! No Gagging, No Stomach Upsets!

Now relieve maddening coughing spasms and other tormenting symptoms of colds with the best known—most widely used—medication of its kind in all the world . . . VICKS VAPORUB. Mothers know it best!

Just melt a good spoonful of Vicks VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Then . . . breathe in the steaming, medicated vapors. Feel the grand relief as VapoRub's soothing medication is carried with every breath right to tormented upper breathing passages. It loosens choking phlegm, quiets coughing, soothes irritation, and helps clear the head.

FOR ADDED RELIEF, rub throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. VapoRub works for hours—2 ways at once—to bring comfort. Remember . . . it's Vicks VapoRub!

Health Survey Planned Here For January

The provincial advisory committee of the national medical procurement and assignment board will undertake a survey of the medical, dental and nursing situation in Alberta during the early part of January, Dr. M. R. Bow, deputy minister of health, announced Wednesday.

Chairman of the committee is Dr. F. D. Campbell, Calgary.

The survey is being planned as a result of the serious shortage of medical men owing to enlistments in the armed services. This problem was discussed at a conference of deputy ministers of public health at Winnipeg Dec. 16 and 17. Dr. Bow represented Alberta at this conference.

It was decided at this meeting that a nation-wide survey be undertaken to determine the minimum health service necessary during wartime.

New Canadian Destroyer Is Commissioned

By ALAN RANDAL

A BRITISH PORT, Dec. 30.—(CP)—In this famous shipyard, H.M.C.S. Iroquois, a powerful tribal-class destroyer built for the Royal Canadian Navy, has been commissioned.

The vessel now is at sea manned by an all-Canadian crew. And the fact the ship's officer commanding, Cmdr. W. B. L. Holmes, a "straight striper" from Victoria, B.C., took over his vessel amid uninterrupted sounds of ship builders at work made the commissioning all the more impressive.

Named after the famed Indian fighting tribe, the vessel was the first of a number of Canadian tribal destroyers launched in Britain during the last year.

OTHERS LAUNCHED

After the Iroquois launching came the launching of the H.C.N. tribals, the Arthabaskan, the Huron, and the Haida. These have still to be commissioned.

The Iroquois is the first vessel of this class taken over by the R.C.N. and thus is the largest vessel in the Canadian Fleet. It is of a type which has already earned undying honor in all major actions of this war, from the battle of Narvik Fjord to escort work on Russian and Malta convoys.

"I consider it a great honor to be chosen to command this destroyer," said Cmdr. Holmes. "I shall do my utmost to maintain the high standard set by the Tribals from the Royal Navy. The Iroquois will be a credit to the Royal Canadian Navy and to the Empire."

—V—

Tribal-class destroyers are vessels of 1,870 tons, carrying a crew of 190 and mounting eight 4.7-inch guns and seven smaller guns. They also mount four 21-inch torpedo tubes. The peacetime cost to the Royal Navy for each such destroyer averaged $2,000,000. Destroyers of this type are called Tribal class because they are named after various native tribes in the empire.

Vice Admiral Percy Nelles, chief of the Royal Canadian Navy, has termed Tribal class destroyers "comparable in fighting power to some light cruisers now in service."

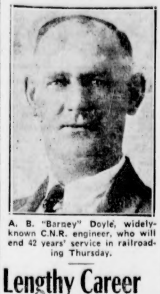
de Gaulle Expected To Visit Ottawa

OTTAWA, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, is expected to visit Ottawa after his impending stay in Washington, informed sources said yesterday.

Ends Service



A. B. "Barney" Doyle, widely-known C.N.R. engineer, who will end 42 years' service in railroading Thursday.

Lengthy Career As Railroader Brought to End

A career which has lasted 42 years, will end Thursday for A. B. Doyle, veteran railroader, 10422 92 street, when he completes his last trip on the Canadian National Railway line from St. Paul to Edmonton, at the throttle of the locomotive. He took the train out Wednesday noon.

It was in 1900 that Engineer Doyle first started his life as a railroader, and he became one of the employees of the Glasgow South-Western Railway. He is a native of Scotland.

Seven years later he came to Canada and made his home in Edmonton, where he has remained ever since. That year he became an employee of the Grand Trunk Pacific as a fireman. He remained with the G.T.P. until it merged with the Canadian Northern Railway to become the Canadian National Railways.

BECAME ENGINEER

It was in 1910 that Mr. Doyle became an engineer, a position he has held ever since. Those are, he said "Few lines out of Edmonton on which I haven't taken a train."

Thursday, at the age of 65, Mr. Doyle will complete his last run in the cab of the engine when he brings the train back from St. Paul and retires from service with the Canadian National Railways.

He is a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and a member of the Northern Alberta Old Timers' Association.

A delegation will meet him when he arrives in Edmonton Thursday.

Death Penalty For Belgians Who Aid German Invaders

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(BUP)—The Belgian government in exile today decreed the death penalty for Belgians who aid the Germans by fighting with them, impeding the flow of food transportation or denouncing loyal Belgians to the Nazis. The decree was being broadcast to Belgium through the BBC. Diplomatic quarters in Ankara reported that the Axis now was persecuting Turks. They said many families of the Turkish minority living in Bulgaria near the Turkish border had been forced to move inland and several hundred had been sent to concentration camps.

Coal Gas Poison Kills Prince, Wife

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Dec. 30.—(AP)—Prince Albrecht of Schaumburg-Lippe of Austria and his commoner wife of a few years, died of coal gas poisoning on Christmas Eve in their home at Linz, the German Transocean News Agency reported in a dispatch from the Austrian city yesterday.

Edmonton Woman "Makes Good"; Now on Service With Air Force

Another Edmonton woman who has "made good" in the R.C.A.F., Women's Division, is Cpl. W. D. Koenan, Montreal, the former Winnifred Denise Lord, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lord, 10923 103 street.

"Cpl. Denny", as she is popularly known by her friends, is the wife of Capt. Henry Koenen, of No. 2 A.O.S., R.C.A.F., Edmonton. She joined the air force early this year and is now on service patrol in Montreal. She received her stripes in Montreal.

Born in England, Cpl. Koenan came to Edmonton at an early age, with her parents. She was educated in this city, and has a deep appreciation of music in all forms, being both a vocalist and a pianist. Prior to her enlistment, she sang professionally on the radio with dance orchestras, and at concerts.

Cpl. Koenan is a popular artist with the band of No. 1 Wireless School, R.C.A.F., Montreal. She specializes as a yodeller.

She was keenly interested in aviation prior to her enlistment and made many flights with her husband through the North West Territories. She studied wireless as a hobby.

FATHER IS VETERAN

Mr. Lord, her father, is a veteran of the First Great War, having joined the 51st Battalion in Edmonton in 1915. Going overseas in the same year, he transferred to the 14th Battalion, Royal Montreal Regiment in France. Wounded in the battle of Courcelette, on the Somme, he was discharged in 1918.

Not content with serving in one war, Mr. Lord joined the 13th Company, Veterans' Guard of Canada, in Edmonton in this war and served at Calgary and Kananaskis. He was discharged in July, 1941, and is now employed in the officers' quarters at No. 3 Manning Depot, R.C.A.F., Edmonton.

Cpl. W. D. Koenan, R.C.A.F., the former Winnifred Denise Lord of this city, who is serving in eastern Canada.

Contender Champion "Dad" Title

The title of "Champion Daddy" among men in the armed services may be bestowed upon Cpl. A. C. White, now stationed at No. 4 Initial Training School in Edmonton.

Cpl White is father of 16 children, three of whom are at present in various branches of the armed forces. The remaining 13 are at home, most of them too young to enlist.

The "daddy among daddies" is a veteran of the war of 1914-18, enlisting Feb. 18, 1915, and serving for four years. He enlisted at the age of 16.

He has a son, Oscar, 20, with the R.C.A.F. in Alaska, and another son, Maurice Douglas, 18, stationed at Currie Barracks, near Calgary. His married daughter, Mrs. Hazel Payne, is at No. 2 Air Observers' School in Edmonton, and her husband is in the armed forces overseas.

New Contingent Of U.S. Troops Lands at Dakar

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP)—The Morocco radio said last night that a second contingent of American troops had just landed at Dakar, French West Africa, and had occupied the airdrome there, across the South Atlantic from Brazil.

This was a development of French West Africa's decision to throw in her lot with the Allies' cause. One contingent of American technicians and an army-naval mission headed by Vice-Admiral William Glassford, Jr., arrived at Dakar last week.

An additional United States mission under the command of a rear admiral also has arrived in Dakar, the Morocco radio said later.

COMPLETE ACCORD

"It consists of technicians who are in complete agreement with the French high command on devising a plan of military co-operation which will include in particular a utilization of airfields of French West Africa by American planes," the broadcast said.

"At the same time as the mission the new American consul-general arrived at Dakar. Until now the United States consulate was headed by a consul. Its elevation to the rank of consulate-general proves the importance which the United States attaches to Dakar. The new consul-general knows France and the French people well."

Danger of Flood Grows as Result Of Heavy Snows

If temperatures rise rapidly and stay high, there is some danger of flooded sections throughout the city, according to a report from the city engineer's department.

Total snowfall this winter was brought to 31 inches by the three inches of snowfall that has fallen during the past 48 hours. This record is classed by the weather bureau as "abnormal."

During Tuesday night and Wednesday morning street railway sweepers were out keeping the tram lines clear. Wagons and snow clearing equipment were removing snow from curbs and leveling out rutted streets.

Heavy snow, where it has been unpacked by traffic, has acted as an insulator between the ground and the cold and in many places where the snow is loose the frost has not penetrated the ground more than an inch or two, reports the engineer's department.

Officer Charged By Court-Martial Disclaims Guilt

QUEBEC, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Maj. Celestin Guimont of Pont Rouge, Que., pleaded not guilty before a general court martial yesterday to the first of the three charges laid against him following alleged irregularities in the medical examinations of prospective army recruits.

Maj. Guimont, 34-year-old Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps officer, pleaded not guilty to having examined various persons prior to their appearance before an army medical board, contrary to instructions issued by his commanding officer.

Decorations to Be Awarded at Levee in City

Presentation of Efficiency Decorations to four army officers will mark the observance of the New Year's Day levee of His Honor Lt. Gov. John C. Bowen in the legislative chamber, Legislative Buildings, Friday between 3:30 and 5 p.m., it was announced by His Honor's office Wednesday.

The lieutenant governor will receive the general public at the levee and many representatives of the armed forces will pay their respects.

To be eligible for an Efficiency Decoration, an officer must have served in the army on or after December 1931 and must have completed 20 years continuous service

FOUR OFFICERS

Officers who will receive the awards from His Honor are: Lt.-Col. Alan Elliott, officer commanding No. 13 District Wing, M.D. 13; Maj. H. J. Tyverton of the Edmonton Fusiliers, who is on the instructional cadre at Currie Barracks, Calgary; Maj. D. A. Petrie of the First Active Battalion, Edmonton Regiment, who is at present with the Canadian Army Basic Training Centre No. 133 (Welsh-Irish); Capt. H. Doucette, who is on the staff of the quartermaster's branch, No. 13 District Wing, M.D. 13.

The ceremony will take place at 4:30 p.m. Those who will receive with Lt. Gov. Bowen are Mayor John W. Fry and John Randolph, American consul in Edmonton.

His Honor's aides will include Col. W. W. Hancock, officer commanding the Edmonton detachment of the R.C.M.P., and Capt. Alan Gillies, quartermaster with the Second (Reserve) Battalion, Edmonton Fusiliers. It is expected the names of other aides may be announced before New Year's Day.

Canada Part in American Union Once Unwelcome

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(CP)—The United States frowned on Canadian membership in the Pan-American Union in 1928 when Calvin Coolidge was president and Frank B. Kellogg secretary of state, it was shown yesterday in official state papers released for publication.

The attitude of the United States government was made known in instructions issued by Kellogg to the American delegation to the sixth Pan-American conference, held in Havana. The instructions were dated Jan. 5, 1928, and took the ground that Canadian participation in the Union would be unacceptable because, it claimed, Canada did not control its own foreign relations and was not capable of making, an autonomous American state.

CHAIR RESERVED

Actually Canada never has sought membership in the Pan-American Union. Today the chair in the council table has been reserved for her since it was formed.

It was pointed out here last night that the instructions were issued before passage of the Statute of Westminster which cleared away any lingering doubts of Canada's ability to follow a foreign policy independent of the British government or any factor springing from her membership in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Within the last year or two this correspondent has been assured by various officials of the United States government that no objections are made today to Canadian membership in the Pan-American Union, but a formal test has never been made on the point because Canada has never sought membership.

Body of Seaman Is Found Frozen

HALIFAX, Dec. 30.—(CP)—Body of a Royal Navy seaman was found frozen yesterday beside the railroad track at the west end of the city. The sailor, thought to be between 25 and 30 years of age, had apparently been struck by a train, as both his legs were severed.

Confirmed

Chief Constable Matthew Blackwood, whose appointment as chief of the Edmonton police force was confirmed Wednesday by city commissioners. He was appointed acting chief of the force on the retirement last June of former Police Chief A. G. Shute.

1943 in the quiet thought and hope that their dear one (or ones) serving in the services in remote corners of the war world, will march home triumphantly during the coming year.

They will be contended to spend the night quietly with remaining members of the family, sacrificing all forms of gaiety as a signal of devotion towards the ones on service.

Following by one week the largest congestion of buyers in Edmonton's history, Edmonton housewives are again invading grocery stores Wednesday and Thursday to stock up for the long week-end. Most of the larger places of business will close Thursday and not re-open until Monday.

CAPACITY AUDIENCES

Theatre houses expect capacity audiences at their midnight frolics. All houses are offering numerous and varied prizes to lucky winners and special entertainment programs for all attending.

Thousands of Edmonton homes will be scenes of house parties consisting of dinners, followed by games and dancing until midnight.

At the sound of the sirens, whistles and horns the merry-makers will burst into cheering and exchanges of greetings, accompanied by "Auld Lang Syne".

Thousands of the younger set will spend the evening in outdoor sports, especially skating and skiing. Skating rinks have arranged for midnight skating. Some sleigh ride parties have been arranged.

With most of the celebrating concentrated upon the midnight hour, city street railway officials provided a treat for early comers by offering late tram service to all parts of the city.

BIG FEATURE

An especially interesting feature of Edmonton's New Year's celebrations Thursday will be the presence in many city homes of scores of guests who made this city either their temporary quarters for the duration or who came to the city for New Year's leave.

Civilians and soldiers from the United States, and men of the three armed services from all Allied nations will be guests at scores of Edmonton homes during the celebrations, for their first time.

Chief sports event on New Year's Day will be the junior hockey game at 3 p.m. at the 119 street rink between No. 3 "M" Depot and the E.A.C.'s.

Bus, Truck Drivers Perish in Blaze After Collision

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 30. —(AP)—The drivers of a bus and a heavy truck burned to death yesterday when their vehicles collided on a hill and the bus took fire. Police said the truck driver was pinched through the windshield of his cab and through a side window of the bus, and thus was trapped in the flames with the bus driver, who was the only occupant of the bus.

Well - Known Here, Mrs. W. Gifford Dies

Mrs. Mary S. Gifford, widow of Wearman Gifford, died at her home at 10520 126 street, Wednesday morning. She was 89 years old.

To survive her Mrs. Gifford leaves one daughter, Mrs. A. P. Chattell of Edmonton, and three sons, Norman of Edmonton, Charles of Winnipeg, and Marston of Toronto. One sister also survives. Mrs. Crawley, of Victoria, B.C. and a brother, Harry Buck, of Chicago, Ill.

Milan, Genoa, Hamburg, Dusseldorf.....

"BERLIN—British bombers raided Western Germany last night . . ." Nightly, in bombing weather, the lads who once delivered your paper . . . wrapped your groceries . . . played in your backyard . . . don the harness of war, streak down the flare-path and into a black sky to do another job for you. This is their flying workroom. Silhouetted here are the "offices" of front gunner and bomb aimer in a Halifax, one of the heavy bomber types manned by the R.C.A.F. As many as 1,000 Canadians have served at once in raids on enemy lands.

"HOT" GIFT
CHAPTER X

"NOT going?"

"No."

"You're staying?"

"Yeah."

"You're crazy."

"I ain't crazy."

"Then why are you staying?"

"We're having a Christmas party."

"And you're Santa Claus."

Beano was stubborn. "When I was a kid I never had fun at christmas time. Now I can help these kids to have a good time and I'm not going to spoil their party. Besides, there's a turkey in their as big as an ostrich, and I don't want to miss that turkey dinner."

"Not if it costs you 20 years in the pen?"

"I'll beat it after dinner, not before."

"You'll beat it with a pair of cuff links on your wrists that won't come off till they unlock them."

Beano's jaw set like a rock and Benny shrugged his shoulders. He had seen Beano like that before and knew he was beyond the influence of sweet reason.

He shrugged his shoulders again, took another mince pie and went to join the others. He was not any too happy about the situation.

Benny returned to the wide living room of the lounge where a cheerful fire was blazing in the stone fireplace.

The Christmas tree was gay with color and sparkling with tinsel. Everybody had been so busy that no one had noticed his absence. He joined Ross Benson, who was taking a moment off while Fay went disentangling some problem with Myra.

"Nice girl you got." His eyes watched Fay.

"She's not my girl," said Ross.

"That's right," said Benny, "Keep away from them."

"Not me," said Ross. "I love 'em."

"Wait till you get older," said Benny. There was a warning note in his voice.

"Nothing doing," said Ross. "You're only young twice and the second time it's too late."

"Well, if you must, pick 'em like that." He nodded towards Fay.

"Now that's a nice kid. Too skinny for my taste but look at that smile, smile, all over her face, but it's the genuine thing. Get her and you keep her."

"I'm not playing for keeps."

Benny drifted over to Fay and Myra. Myra noted the slight uneasiness that dampened his usual assurance.

"Feeling good, Benny?"

"Sure, I am, but then kids won't if they're going to eat all that stuff in the kitchen."

Meanwhile Beano was thinking hard. You couldn't trust anyone in these days, least of all a pair of dicks whose job was to recover the diamonds to save their company paying out a heavy sum for insurance. Guys that would choose a time like Christmas to chase other guys who hadn't really done anything wrong couldn't be trusted to understand how innocent a guy really was. But if they couldn't find the ice they couldn't pin anything on him unless Benny was playing ball with them for the reward for recovery.

Beano felt alone and deserted. At least Leona was faithful Absentmindedly he hitched a leg up and half sat on the table.

Then a sudden inspiration hit him. The Christmas tree! He went up to Leona's room and got the rest of the ice he could put it all together in the leather pouch and wrap it up in some red paper. He could label it, "To Leona, with all my love, from you know who," and hang it on the tree.

They wouldn't be giving the presents until after the turkey dinner. He could tell Leona so she would not open it. He'd have to be Santa Claus again to make sure nothing went wrong. Then if the dicks did come before he got away they could search the house from top to bottom and they wouldn't find a thing. Who would think of searching a Christmas tree for hot ice?

The more he thought of it the more he liked the idea.

A little later he was bending somewhere around the back of the tree. Myra strolled round to him.

"Don't tell anyone I told you," she said, "but it looks to me as if you've been sitting in something."

Beano's hand went around to his seat and came away quickly. "Mincemeat," he said. "Must have sat on some pies in the kitchen."

"Seems like it," said Myra. "They're so soft you'd hardly notice it."

"Yeah," said Beano. "I thought it was warm."

"Just out of the oven. It's hard to carry them that way. Here's some paper to wrap them up in."

She handed him a sheet of paper with bells and holly on it.

"Hold this a moment," said Beano. "I'll go and fix myself."

He handed her a small packet. It was labeled "To Leona with all my love from you know who." She held it, waiting for him to return, wondering to what depths Beano had been smitten by the sultry beauty of Leona. She turned the little parcel over in her hands and something of the shape of the diamonds inside came through to her touch. She pressed a little harder, letting her fingers follow the hardness and feeling the stones more under her touch.

Then Beano was back, taking the little parcel from her. He tied it carefully well up in the back of the tree and smiled with a satisfaction that confirmed Myra's suspicions. Then she noticed that he was with Leona, nodding at the tree and going into an involved explanations. Leona chewed candy as he talked and gave no hint that her peace of mind was in any way disturbed.

That night, Leona sat up in bed late to make up her beauty sleep and to plan her future. It seemed mainly to consist in convincing her father that Beano was a gentleman with means of his own that could be split with the family if her family was insistent. She would also have to convince her father that Beano's intentions were honest and that it would pay better than her new job as an artist's model.

After deciding her course of action with her difficult parent she began to dream of her honeymoon. As far as she was concerned, careers for girls were very much overrated. Her ideal of a life was to be left alone most of the day in an apartment of her own with all the movie magazines and a box of chocolates, and a husband to come home at night and take her to a show.

Curious World —By William Ferguson

750 Ships Built By U.S. in Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—The United States shipbuilding industry turned out in 1942 a record number of 750 merchant vessels, totalling 8,000,000 deadweight tons, to meet President Roosevelt's "blue-print for victory" goal, H. Gerrish Smith, president of the national council of shipbuilders, said yesterday.

(Axis submarines have sunk 575 Allied and neutral cargo ships in the western Atlantic since the United States entered the war in The Associated Press tabulation of announced sinkings.)

In a year-end statement, Smith said: "If we are given the men, materials and equipment we can and will meet the president's call for 15,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant ships in 1943."

Guadalcanal Japs Said Ill, Starving

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Japan's isolated forces on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons were reported authoritatively yesterday to be suffering severely from starvation and disease, without fresh supplies for about six weeks.

Cmdr. Dwight H. Dexter, coast guard officer in charge of the naval operating base on Guaralcanal until Nov. 5, said in a press conference at the United States navy department that from his experiences on the island he judged that "right now the Japanese are having all they can do to combat starvation and disease, let alone having to worry about the little bit of hell the marines are giving them."

His observation tied in directly with a report covering a later period in Guaralcanal which came from Sgt. James W. Hurlbut, a marine corps combat correspondent in the Solomons.

In a dispatch released by the navy department today Hurlbut said the American naval forces are keeping out enemy reinforcements and supplies and that "disease and lack of proper medical facilities are playing havoc with the enemy".

No "Blood" Profit Allowed Canadians States Counsellor

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 30—(AP)—"No Canadian will make money out of the bloodshed of his fellow citizens," L. B. Pearson, counsellor of the Canadian legation at Washington, told the Federation of Women's Clubs here yesterday. He said leading Canadian corporations' profits increased "only from $156,000,000 to $170,000,000 between 1938 and 1941" and that due to a levy of five times the normal federal taxes, Canadian corporations will show a profit below the 1939 level.

Press in Italy Infers Wallace Aims Acceptable

BERNE, Dec. 30—(AP)—Henry Wallace's peace aims along economic lines would be acceptable to Italy provided there were adjustments to give poorer countries economic opportunity, the Italian newspaper Giornale D'Italia implied yesterday in commenting on the speech of the vice-president of the United States.

Giornale D'Italia, whose viewpoint presumably is that of Virginio Gayda, listed revision of colonial possessions as one of the major peace problems. Gayda frequently reflects official opinion.

Names Announced Of 171 Canadians Caught at Dieppe

OTTAWA, Dec. 30—(CP)—The Canadian (Active) Army last night made public the names of 171 Canadian soldiers who were made prisoners of war in last August's battle of Dieppe.

The names appeared in two simultaneously-issued overseas casualty lists, the 236th and 237th of the war. The 236th list named 85 men previously reported missing, now reported prisoner of war. The 237th list named one man previously reported killed in action now reported a prisoner of war, one man not listed previously reported a prisoner of war, and 84 men previously reported missing now reported captured.

Four Bills Are Studied As Boy Parliamentarians Draft Youth Legislation

Legislation affecting Alberta boys' work is taking shape Wednesday as members of the 23rd Provincial Boys' Parliament prepare for their prorogation ceremony Thursday noon. Tuesday night the youth delegates gave second readings to four major bills, first readings to five acts to amend standing statutes, and introduced their members' duties bill.

Third session of the "house" will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Executive Chambers of the Legislative buildings. The public are invited to watch proceedings.

Four bills given second readings were regarding a parliament handbook, orders-in-council, honorary members and war services. Session "went into committee of the whole" to consider each of these bills in detail, with the deputy-speaker, Robert Wilson, Edmonton, in charge.

FIRST READINGS

First readings for acts to amend standing statutes included those regarding social, physical and devotional affairs, parliament census, and leadership training.

Handbook bill provides for a permanent committee to compile a "complete record of the Alberta Boys' Parliament" and names W. H. Pettigrew, chairman of the Edmonton Boys' Work Board, to head up this permanent committee. Other members include Premier Edgar Johannson, Speaker J. Ernest Nix, W. Gray Rivers, boys' work secretary, and R. J. Torrance.

Cabinet will have the power to make necessary changes and additions to legislation, with certain restrictions, according to the provisions of the orders-in-council bill. These changes may not be directly contrary to existing legislation.

Those eligible for the status of honorary membership in Boys' Parliament, as provided by the honorary member bill, will be former members "who have continued to serve faithfully, and who have been out of parliament for at least two years" and "other faithful boys' workers who it is deemed should receive such recognition". Provise is made so that recognition can be given to boys' group leaders who hold positions which are not of the type that receive much in the way of public recognition.

WAR LEGISLATION

War services legislation specifies the duties of the war services minister, Robert Wilson, Edmonton. He is to "plan activities of value to our national war effort"; "to advise district committees and individual groups of plans, and to make advances to the heads of other youth organizations regarding co-ordination of war services' work."

THREE "ESSENTIALS" CITED FOR BOY LEGISLATORS

Boy parliamentarians were told to consider health, leadership, and post-war planning as three "essentials" for group consideration during 1943 by Clark Ready, general secretary of the Edmonton Y.M.C.A., in his address Tuesday afternoon to the 23rd session members at St. Stephen's college. Mr. Ready spoke on the parliament theme "Christian Leadership in Wartime."

Other features Tuesday afternoon were a discussion group on personal problems led by W. Grey Rivers, Alberta boys' work secretary, and a party, including skating, broomball, and indoor games, with members of the city girls' council of the C.G.I.T. movement.

Leadership training finals will be given Wednesday afternoon, as will a gym and swim class demonstration at the Y.M.C.A.

MINISTER TO SPERK

Rev. Elgin G. Turnbull, minister of Knox United church, will speak on the theme "Christian leadership in Wartime" following Wednesday's luncheon at St. Stephen's college.

Following the third session of the house Wednesday night caucus for nomination of leaders for the 24th Parliament will be held.

Alaska Road Biggest U.S. Army Project

Construction of the Alaska Highway is undoubtedly the largest military project of its kind ever undertaken by the United States, it was stated in Edmonton Wednesday by Maj. Chris J. Sherlock of the U.S. Corps of Engineers. Maj. Sherlock plans to leave shortly for the north.

The U.S. army officer is president of the American Road Builders Association, an organization which covers 34 countries and has a membership of approximately 40,000.

He was formerly state highway director for Alabama and is a past vice-president of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

ENLISTED IN JUNE

Maj. Sherlock enlisted in June, 1942, and was stationed with the Denver district Corps of Engineers for five months before coming to Edmonton.

Speaking on behalf of the American Road Builders Association, he stressed the active interest members of the association had taken in the construction of the Alaska Highway.

"I think it can be safely said that this was the largest military project of its kind ever undertaken by the United States," he said.

"The association realizes the highway will mean much in the promotion of the solidarity of the Americas — Canada, the United States, Central and South America. And when the war is over, this highway will still play an important part in the economic life of these countries."

Getting Around

unwavering devotion of the men who participated in the great construction venture the job could never have been completed in such record-breaking fashion, the commanding officer stated.

In a second advertisement donated to the general by Publisher Moore the officer expressed his thanks to the people of Canada for their splendid hospitality to the United States forces engaged in the construction of the Alaska highway and also for the wholehearted co-operation received from all branches of Canada's fighting service.

General O'Connor assured Canadians and Canadian fighting services that such magnificent co-operation will be completely reciprocal. U.S. troops will always be ready to co-operate with the forces of Canada and the people of Canada in any emergency that may arise along the route of the highway or wherever U.S. troops may be quartered on Canadian soil. Pretty thoughtful of General O'Connor, we would say.

We have been thinking of Kenny Metheral during the last few hours Of course we should refer to him as Pilot Officer K. J. Metheral D.F.C., of the R.C.A.F., overseas, who made upwards of 60 flights over enemy-occupied territory. But it seems more natural, just thinking of him as Kenny, a chunky reddish-haired youngster, who liked to tinker with cameras and who always turned up at every big fire with a member of The Bulletin news staff, just a year or two ago.

Kenny had a keen sense of humor, but could be serious when serious action was called for. He was a real plugger and seemed to do things the hard way. But they were well done, and that's what counts.

Kenny didn't boast, but he delivered the goods when called upon. He was just a swell kid. Of such stuff Canada's heroes are made.

Find Baby's Body

The Bonnyville detachment R.C.M.P. is investigating circumstances leading to the finding of a new-born baby in the snow at Metis Colony, near Beaver Crossing Tuesday. Superintendent J. D. Bird was informed by phone of the discovery Wednesday morning and stated that R.C.M.P. stationed at Bonnyville are investigating.

Honored

Sgt. Leslie Smitten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smitten of this city, who has been honored in a special memorial picture issued by the Ministry of Air.

Outstanding Airmen Obtain New Tributes

Tribute to outstanding graduates of various schools, who have been decorated for gallantry in action, has been instituted by the Ministry of Air. The tribute consists of a framed picture of the airman, surrounded by a decorated border, including the coats-of-arms of the various air forces included in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. At the top is the inscription, "Whom the King Honoreth."

First such tribute has been received by M. J. Hilton, principal of the Edmonton Technical school, and the airman honored is Sgt. Leslie Smitten, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smitten of this city.

Under the picture is the following inscription:

"Sergeant Leslie Smitten, Distinguished Flying Medal. This air observer received the Distinguished Flying Medal for extinguishing a fire in his aircraft after it was hit during an attack on Bremen in July, 1941. He navigated the aircraft home to Britain where a forced landing was made without injury to the crew. Born in Calgary, he was educated in Scona High school, Edmonton, and Edmonton Technical school. He enlisted in June, 1940, and was trained at Regina, Mossbank and Rivers. 'Great courage, coolness and determination' were attributed to him in the citation."

The border, in addition to having the coats-of-arms of the various air forces, has inner and outer strings of maple leaves. The coloring is attractive and suitable.

H. H. Booth, R.C.A.F., is given credit for the design.

Plan New Year's Dinner Thursday

Troops at the Prince of Wales Armory barracks will have their New Year's day dinner on Thursday instead of on Friday, so that personnel may take advantage of invitations out on New Year's day, Area Commandant Lt. Col E. Brown, M.M., E.D., said Wednesday. This procedure was followed at Christmas.

Half of the men here are on leave.

The New Year's day dinner will consist of turkey and all the trimmings, but the officers will not serve the men on this occasion, as was the case at Christmas dinner.

Speaker Clamps Down on 'Feuding' Of Rival Groups at Youth Session

The prank "feud" between "government" and opposition" at the 23rd Alberta Boys' Parliament was halted abruptly Tuesday night when Speaker J. Ernest Nix, Edmonton, "called the house to order" following minor skirmishes during a "committee of the whole" which was under the direction of Deputy-Speaker Robert Wilson, also of Edmonton. But Speaker Nix didn't restore order before both sides of the house had exchanged "pleasantries."

At the opening session Monday night the government gave Leader of the Opposition Ross McBain a nipple "to help soothe him to more of the sleep he apparently desires." Tuesday night McBain returned the "insult" in a useful manner. As nipples are made of rubber, he turned the said nipple over to the war services minister, Robert Wilson, following discussion of war services projects.

GETS TOY PHONE

Opposition Leader McBain also sent Premier Edgar Johannson a toy telephone "to assist him in contacting members of his government." McBain thought Johannson appeared to be having trouble in getting his government to speak for their legislation.

A "Chinese checkers" game played between two parliament officials was ordered "broken up" when Sgt.-at-Arms Hadley Ward, Edmonton, stepped in to prevent Clerk of the Session, Blake Pritchard formerly of Lethbridge, from participating. This incident occurred during one of the four "committees of the whole" in which members discuss in detail legislation up for consideration.

Old Magazine Recalls Times Of Depression

A fifty-one year old copy of a monthly magazine published in St. Paul, Minn., and making mention of a world-wide depression was brought to The Bulletin by a member of the R.C.A.F. Wednesday.

Cpl. A. C. White, No. 4 Initial Training School, arrived from his home at Grassland, Alta., following Christmas leave, and brought with him a copy of "The North West," a monthly magazine printed at St. Paul, in September 1891. It was a 62-page issue, devoted extensively to the advertising of an annual industrial exposition at Portland, Oregon.

"While all other sections of the country have felt the effect of the wave of depression which recently swept over the world, the solid city of Portland stands like a rock unshaken by the financial storm."

LISTS ASSETS

It went on to list Portland as a city of 80,000 persons among whom were 35 millionaires. Fourteen banks, immense wholesale houses and scores of great factories are found there also, the announcement stated.

Cpl. White pointed to an item stating that at that time prospectors were apparently keenly interested in mining development in the Okanagan valley. One wealthy prospector-fruit grower had recently arrived in Portland reporting finds of deposits of gold, silver, copper, lead, iron, nickel and mica.

According to another news item the problem of "selfishness' on the part of women putting on their make-up while travelling on the Northern Pacific transcontinental, was solved. The item goes on to describe the removal of locks on the doors leading to the dressing room, and installing a curtain immediately inside the door.

The copy contained numerous items that in this day and age make interesting if not humorous reading.

Police Chief Warns About Sleigh-Riding

A complaint from the street railway department about boys coasting along 97 avenue brought a stern warning Wednesday from Chief Constable Matthew Blackwood.

It was reported to Chief Blackwood that children have been a source of considerable annoyance to street car motormen, and motorists alike along 97 avenue in various regions between 109 street and 101 street.

Several accidents to children playing on city streets have been reported in the last month. In three cases the victims had to be taken to hospitals. In view of this situation apparently showing no sign of receding, Chief Blackwood warns parents of the children that prosecutions will be launched.

APPROVES SUMMONS

Chief Blackwood O.K.'d an application for summons against one 16-year-old boy who refused to heed warnings about coasting down a city hill. He will appear in juvenile court within a few days.

In fairness to street car motormen and to motorists generally, the menace must be stamped out and it can be done only with the co-operation of the parents, Chief Blackwood stated.

The warning applies not only to children using 97 avenue but to children using any hill within the city limits, he added.

ROAD REPORT

A.M.A. Safety Slogan: Beware of soft shoulders when the road is wet or icy.

Wednesday's road report: Heavy snow has affected some of the roads. At Two Hills the road is blocked while at Grande Prairie and Fort St. John the roads are very bad and snow is still falling. At Waskatenau the roads are heavy and drifted. At Cherhill, Thorsby and Bashaw the weather is cloudy and the roads are good, while at Viking the weather is clear and the roads are good.
